EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

IOWA'S 30,000 will do well for an "off year."

IT is a real cold day when Iowa goes wrong.

IF you want a first-class associate judge vote for Christian Dale, Sr.

VOTE for H. H. Harshberger, the Republican candidate for district attorney.

THE army of European pleasure-seekers are crowding the homeward bound steamers.

THE discovery of a large river in Alaska may possibly furnish a route to the North pole.

AFTER all Governor Hoadly may get the fifty thousand dollars back that he paid for his nomination. He is hopeful, at least.

A FEW more Democratic victories will convert our ten-dollar-per day statesmen to the belief that they can continue in session all year with impunity.

BLAINE is probably the only candidate who is wanted, and yet who never gets the nomination. The trouble is he is such a brainy man that he has made enemies who, while not so strong, have enough strength to defeat him.

THE Democrats of New York started out with the expectation of easily carrying the State. But it is already clear that the Republicans are going to make a gallant battle, and not without fair hopes. The Democratic harmony is chiefly on the surface.

THE Minnesota state statistician in his crop report says that there will be very little good sound corn harvested in that state this season, owing to the destruction of the crop by the frosts. The value of the crop will hardly reach 33 per cent. of a good average yield, out of 764,687 acres.

THE governor of Texas declares that if he had an army of 50,000 men at his command he couldn't stop the destruction of fences, the stealing of sheep and the murdering of negroes which are of such frequent occurrence in that state. It is pretty apparent that unbroken Democratic supremacy is bearing its legitimate fruits in Texas.

THE sorghum industry is likely to prove a valuable addition to the agricultural interests of Kansas. The lands sown to the plant this year in that state, aggregating an area of about 3000 acres, will yield nearly 800 pounds of sugar and seventy-five gallons of syrup to the acre. Such results would seem to indicate that sorghum growing can be made a highly profitable pursuit

THE "Free Trade Conference" held in St. Louis a few days ago was attended by one delegate from Pennsylvania, but the gentleman's name has not been made public. We respect the discretion which has persuaded this man to conceal his identity, but he might create something of a sensation by making it known even at this late day. There is always an opening in the museums for a native Pennsylvania who is a free-trader—and has anything to trade.

The Result—Work for Victory!

We do not think that Republicans have anything to fear from the recent elections in Ohio. The temperance question was prominent in that State, and while the Democrats expressed themselves decidedly against it the Republicans took no decided or positive stand. Consequently radical temperance voters were distrustful of Republicans and gave their suffrages to their own candidates. The splendid vote on the Second Amendment shows the strong temperance sentiment of Ohio, and we believe that an endorsement of the most advanced temperance creeds by the Republicans of the Buckeye State will ensure victory.

We do not say that extreme temperance Republicans do right to take their suffrages from the Republican party and give them to candidates representing no organized party, for we believe that the Republican party which liberated the slaves—which is the champion of protection, and which has always advocated the cause of right and liberty can safely be trusted to advance the cause of temperance as rapidly as the people are prepared for it. But neither pleading nor argument will convince these fanatics, and as what they advocate is eminently right and proper, we believe that it would be the part of wisdom and expediency in Ohio to inculcate their doctrines into the party platform.

At this writing the Second Amendment seems to be defeated.

Defeat in a State contest in Ohio does not largely affect the Presidential battle. In every State contest there are personal prejudices and dislikes which will not affect the part that State may take in a National fight. Besides, Hoadly was known as an extremely able man. He was ill, and enemies as well as friends, apprehensive that defeat would kill him, out of sympathy, gave him their votes, knowing that Forsker, his more rugged antagonist could survive any amount of adverse fortune. It has become the policy of Democracy to place Tilden, Seymour, Greeley, Hoadly and other invalids on their tickets, let them become prostrated a week or more before the election and invite the sympathy of the voters for them. Hendricks is now trying that game in the Presidential fight, and if Tilden is given first place on the Democratic ticket while Hendricks takes second, sympathy, he thinks, will elect them, Tilden will die and Hendricks will be President. We are told that the Democrats will have a majority of 24 in joint ballot in the Ohio Legislature.

How about Iowa? All is cheering for the Republicans. There a great fight was made. The Democrats imported their best speakers and made a more desperate fight than they ever did before. They even expected victory. But how humiliating to them is the result! The least calculation gives the Republicans 30,000 majority while Sherman, Republican candidate for Governor, has 12,000 plurality. Rejoice, Republicans of Pennsylvania. You are entering a contest where there are no internal dissensions or rivalries to impede your progress, and you should imitate the example of Iowa. Democrats in Pennsylvania are hindered to some extent by rivalries. Wallace and Randall can never work together harmoniously, and they will not at the coming election. Then enter the contest with the determination of redeeming Pennsylvania next November.

SOME people in the Protestant Episcopal church have long been anxious to change its name to the "Holy Catholic" church. But the majority, wisely as we think, is opposed to the change. A proposition of that sort was defeated in the convention at Philadelphia the other day.

IOWA is still there.

Ohio and Pennsylvania.

The result in Ohio is of course held by the Democrats as an endorsement of their policy and practice, and they are trying hard to get up confidence in the result in Pennsylvania on the strength of it. A little consideration, however, remarks the Harrisburg Telegraph, will show the error in this and at the same time explain the quaver in the voice that leads the cheer. In Ohio the Republican party was split on the question of temperance legislation, a question which will not split the Democrats there or anywhere else. This innured to the benefit of the latter party in Ohio, to an extent that leaves as the only matter of surprise, the fact that their majority was not an increase over that of last year instead of a decrease. In Pennsylvania they will have no such aid. Here the issue will turn on the merits of the parties as measured by the records they have made of their relative fitness to govern—the Republicans with their nearly a quarter of a century of wonderful accomplishment, the Democrats with their destructive folly, which preceded Republican rule, and necessitated it, and their show of impecility when in isolated instances entrusted with local power since Among the latter is the high pressure double-geared Democratic reform we have been witnessing since the first Monday of last January. No, the Ohio election in no way presages the result in Pennsylvania. There the election turned on non-political questions. Here it is a fair and square contest between the two parties. Those who believe in Republicanism united on one side those who are willing to risk the wild, unsettled vagaries of modern Democracy on the other. The issues cannot be doubtful.

MRS. CAROLINE H. DALL, one of the earliest woman suffragists, condemns the woman suffragists of Massachusetts who favor Governor Butler because of his cheap endorsement of their cause. She says: "Is it possible that woman should gain when public morals suffer? Massachusetts has passed through a year of intense humiliation, for the first time in her history. Humiliation not undeserved, if we consider how her voters have trifled with their duties, but wholly undeserved in connection with the issues under consideration. To wipe the dishonor of this year from her shield, to put purity and sweetness in the place of a foul miasma, to maintain public honesty and state credit, by the defeat of the present Governor, a united effort of good men of all parties is necessary."

UNDER the new Indian regulations our noble brethren of the moccasin and tomahawk are permitted to keep all the wives they had on hand last March, but they must not take any new ones. Matrimony is said to have been unduly stimulated among them by the fact that the more wives a brave could bring to his wigwam the more rations he could draw; and it is now proposed to have less marrying by cutting down the food supply. The arrangement is denounced in some quarters as an unwarrantable interference with religious freedom, but the Indian bureau is evidently of the opinon that all the desirable brides must have been gathered in by last March, and we might as well begin to take a practical view of the question.

THERE is no earthly reason why the result in Ohio should have any effect on Pennsylvania. None of the issues that were prominent in Ohio are prominent here. Besides no Pennsylvania candidate is troubled with malaria to such an extent as to provoke the ridicule of enemies or the sympathy of friends. There is no reason to suppose that Pennsylvania means to imitate Ohio's vicious example.

OHIO did well and Iowa was just splendid.

PEOPLE who are suddenly elevated from a low level to high distinction are the most intolerable aristocrats of the age. Governor Cleveland, of New York, has suddenly developed an aristocracy of the most repulsive sort. On a recent journey through New York he made an announcement that no one should call on him except those to whom tickets would be sent. This proved to be so revolting to the more ordinary people who would not receive invitations to call on His Excellency that the sentiment againt it was very loudly expressed. The Governor concluded that such aristocracy and exclusiveness was not popular with the people and recalled the announcement, and now the most plebeian citizen may approach and shake hands with him. Nevertheless this attempted exhibition of aristocracy on the part of the Governor will react against him.

THE Democratic victory in Ohio will have the effect of making the contest for the Democratic nomination for president a lively affair. Unmindful of the adage that there's many a slip betwixt the cup and the lip, the Democrats think they scent victory in the air and the most o their prominent men hear a bee buzzing in their bonnets.

PRINCE BISMARCK is reported as being seriously ill. Considering that Bismarck has made the whole world sick at heart for the last few days over the trouble he has stirred up between France and Germany it is not surprising that he should be sick.

Response to the Address of Welcome by Mrs. Annie Wittenmyer.

Mrs. President and ladies and gentlemen: A pleasant duty devolves upon me. And yet where shall I find fitting words to respond to the hearty and beautiful address of welcome to which we have listened.

Some of us have been here again and again and know that these warm, generous words come from warm and generous hearts; that the people of Bellefonte are too honest and earnest and generous to make an empty show of sentiments they do not feel.

The memory of their generous hospitality in the past comes back to some of us like the rich perfume of Eden bowers. We are glad of this welcome because for a brief season we are to be your guests, and are to share the blessings of your beautiful and happy homes. We come weary and heart-sick from a desperate struggle with a merciless foe, to find like pilgrims an open door and a house of rest, where for a little time we may refresh ourselves and gather courage for a renewal of the conflict.

It is delightful that we are privileged under such gracious influences to sit in council together and burnish up our arms and reconsecrate ourselves for more heroic work. It is fitting that we should gather here. Here at this geographical centre of the State—to consider a question that affects every part of the State. This is the hub of Pennsylvania around which the political wheels ought to revolve. There would perhaps be a less wobbling about the party machinery, and a purer political atmosphere, if the State Capitol stood, as it it may some day stand, on one of these green elevated slopes of Bellefonte. The political malaria in the region of Harrisburg has made it a very unhealthy place for temperance legislation. From this higher plane, in this clearer atmosphere, a provision for submitting a Prohibitory Amendment to the people might have been passed, or at least the Legislature with a clearer appreciation of the demands of the people might have been able to adjourn, instead of like Tennyson's brook, going on and on forever. And we remember that this is the home of General Beaver, a man of whom the whole State is justly proud, a man whom a few years ago, with other heroes, faced the cannon, and stood like a wall of fire, between us and a murderous foe, and turned back the black, scorching tides of war from the homes of the North. A man who left a limb on one of the bloody battle fields of the South; who laid a part of himself on the altar of Liberty, the costliest offering a patriot could make. And this is the home of Governor Curtin, Pennsylvania's war governor, who was staunch and true when men of heroic soul and iron muscle were needed to repel a menacing foe. A man who made Pennsylvania in fact as she was in name the Keystone State of the Union. And then we do not forget that this is the home of our own Colonel Keller, who is the first Vice President of the Constitutional Amendment Association, and who is as tall and grand and brave in this fight as he was in the ranks of the Union army.

We feel that it is an honor to be welcomed to the homes of such heroes. But there is another and deeper reason why we are here, and why we so highly appreciate your generous welcome. We come to you from a deadly conflict, in which every interest dear to our hearts is at stake. We battle with a foe that shows no mercy, and gives no quarters. We have left the dying and the dead behind us, on a battle field that is always red with the blood of human victims. We come to find sympathy and help and reinforcements, and knowing all, you welcome us.

We are here especially to consider what women can do for the overthrown of the liquor traffic.

During the last year the society here represented has done a great work, in which you have shared and over which we shall together rejoice as the reports are read from the different sections of the state. In the circulation of petitions, by the distribution of Temperance literature and by the educational processes the general sentiment of the state has been lifted on the Temperance question.

The work done has been thorough and substantial, and the people have been aroused to such earnestness that the adverse action of the legislature and the hostile attitude of the liquor organizations, have not in the least dampened the zeal, or weakened the faith of the people. Pennsylvania never stood on higher ground than to-day; on every hand we have the evidence of advanced thought and prophecies of early victory. But to secure this victory there must be a concentration of the whole force, and a very important part of the work must be done by women. They are the educators of the race, and they wield the social power that must lift humanity out of the slums of social habits and vices.

It is not my purpose to speak of plans of work or repeat the work already done. So I will close with the statement that the Woman's Temperance Union of Pennsylvania is helping to honey comb the liquor traffic of the state. Can it be done?

A few years ago that great natural highway, the East river, was obstructed by a dangerous reef of rocks called Hell-gate.

The channel was difficult of navigation even to the smaller vessels.

Boats had been wrecked, and precious human lives had been lost. But there were men of brain and muscle who said that Hell-gate ought to be removed; that this great natural high way of nations ought to be cleared, and that what ought to be done could be done by American brain and American brawn.

But timid people and croakers and alarmists entered their protest, and declared that East river would be ruined. There was one point where the head rocks lifted themselves above high tide and there these men of courage and enterprise planted themselves, and built a shanty and began to drill down into the heart of the rock, and so made a way for their feet till they stood on a level with the river bed. Then they dug out avenues in every direction till they honey combed Heligate. They could walk through it from end to end and from side to side. They dug pockets into the rocks, and deposited immense quantities of powder, and connected them by a telegraph wire. On the day fixed for the explosion more than 500,000 people stood on the wharfs of New York and Brooklyn murmuring to the last, "East river will be ruined." But when the hour came and the telegraph wire was attached to the battery and a little hand touched the button and quick as a flash there was a mighty upheaval and Hellgate, that had so long uplifted itself against the advance of commerce, went down into depths of the sea, to be heard of no more forever.

That is just what we are doing in Pennsylvania. This liquor system has lifted itself like another Hell-gate against the onward progress of the church; against the advance of commerce; against virtue and purity and good order and domestic happiness, and many a fair young barque has gone down amid its mad swirls into the whirl pool of destruction.

The men and women of this state have gone to work with their picks and drills in hearty earnest and they are honey combing this Hell-gate, and the time will come in the near future when there will be a deposit of Temperance sentiment in every town and village in every neighborhood and school district, in every church and college and school house, and the political wires will connect them all, and freemen with the ballot in their hands will explode the whole iniquitous system, and our Hell-gate will be buried so deep that it will never have a resurrection. We are here to sharpen our tools and manufacture our powder and prepare for the great upheaval that shall bury our Hell-gate so deep that it will never have a resurrection. Asking you to help us, I again in the name of the society thank you for this earnest, hearty welcome.

GENERAL NOTES.

Texas has over $2,000,000 in her treasury.

They are boring hundreds of artesian wells in Montana.

Denver will put up $1,200,000 worth of new buildings in the next year.

There are over 200,000 children in Alabama who do not attend school.

The Chinese of Portland, Ore., are assessed for $145,250 worth of real property.

Bats are now bred in Paris that their heads may be used for ornamenting hats.

Jno. F. Seiberling, of Akron, Ohio, has taken out a patent for making paper barrels.

The total outflow of all the mineral waters of France is estimated at 10,334 gallons per minute.

Philadelphia's Society for the Suppression of Mendicancy has applied the woodsaw test with great success.

Salvini, who is about to retire from the stage, will begin on November 4 a farewell tour through Italy.

A commodious building will soon be finished at New Brunswick, N. J., to serve as barracks for the Salvation Army.

The forge of the United States Arsenal at Watertown, Mass., is to be opened for the first time in ten years to alter twenty-five gun-carriages.

It is said that the poisoning of the elephant at the Imperial Menagerie at Schonbrunn was effected by the use of 650 grains of prussic acid. He died in eight minutes.

American companies have spent over $30,000,000 in railroads in Mexico, and completed over 1,600 miles of track. The English lines aggregate 353 miles, and the Mexican 635.

A young lady, just home from church, could not remember the text, or the drift of the sermon, or the name of the preacher, but thought the cornet player "just too sweet for anything."

Some Springfield physicians are speculating upon the influence of the telephone upon the sense of hearing. They have found several cases wherein disease of the ear has been aggravated by using it.

The board of trade building now being erected in Chicago will have a main hall 147 by 163 feet in area and eighty feet high. It is claimed that it will be the largest room in the world without pillars to support the roof. The tower will be 363 feet high.

A citizen of Memphis, who died recently, had two policies of insurance on his life which his family could not find. One night a friend of the deceased had a dream in which he saw the lost policies. On waking he went for the documents and found them.

A curiosity in Irwin county, Georgia, is a large pine tree with two distinct bodies and only one top. The two trunks grew out of the ground about five feet from each other, but at forty feet higher grew together, and from thence made only one tree and top.

A Montreal man discovered a young bear in a wood-pile in his yard on Maria street, and went after it with a stick. He soon cornered the cub, and killed it. The youngster was about two feet long and very strong. How it came to the heart of the city is a mystery.

The States in which no tax is levied upon commercial travelers are: New York, Colorado, Connecticut, Dakota, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, Vermont, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

J. L. Gross, taxidermist, of Camden, N. J. has captured a kangaroo mouse, which he found in a grove near Camden. The mouse is of a tawny color, with a body a little larger than that of the ordinary mouse. Its fore-legs are only half an inch long, while its hind legs are two inches long, and its tail, which is white, measures six inches.

At a meeting in the Louisville Exposition building it was proposed to borrow $50,000,000 from English capitalists, pledging cotton farms and their products as security, and with the money to erect cotton factories at convenient points in the South. This object is to be discussed by the Cotton Planters' Association at their next meeting, in Vicksburg.

An ear of corn is on exhibition at San Louie Obispo, Cal., grown in the exact form of the hand of a child, showing the wrist, hand, thumb and fingers, all perfect excepting the little finger, which is double. It is covered with small grains of corn to near the tips of the fingers, which are bare prongs of cob, giving the appearance of a hand clad with a mitt.

A Baltimore dealer in ladies' hosiery says: "The sizes range from eight to ten. In Baltimore the average is from eight to eight and a half. In Boston and Chicago it is from nine to nine and a half, and in New York from eight and a half to nine. It is a well-known fact among hosiery dealers that the women of Baltimore have the smallest feet in the country."

In the Austrian empire, the production of beer amounts to thirty-four quarts per inhabitant. In Great Britain each inhabitant is credited with 115 quarts of strong beer, in the United State with forty quarts, in Denmark 112, in Belgium seventy-one, in France twenty-four, in Netherlands fifty-one, in Norway forty-three, in Sweden forty, in Switzerland thirty-nine.

A Chicago hackman, who has a pleasant face and winning manners, has, according to the Chicago Herald, gained $40,000 from his business in the past ten years. His eye falls on a countryman getting out of the train to make his first visit to the city. The hackman engages to show the stranger around town for a dollar. Ere they reach a clothing store he has persuaded his customer to buy a new suit of clothes, and then the two must go to a shoemaker's to get boots to match. And so the hackman trots his man around until the city has been seen, and the rural visitor feels grateful to the man who has taken so much pains with him. In the evening the hackman goes to the traders and draws his commissions.

Poetry.

PHILADELPHIA'S JUBILEE.

Father, what means this big parade,
This wonderful array?
Why do the people rush along
And crowd the streets to-day?
What means the blare of brazen bands
That sound triumphant notes,
And all the hoarse and frantic yells
From many thousand throats?

Why is the city decked with flags
Of colors gay and bright?
And why does every window blaze
With such unusual light?
Why do our greatest, highest men
Hasten to meet the train?
Father, is this the glorious Fourth
Already come again?

No, no, my son; a bigger thing
Has Philadelphia found,
And all the people madly run
To catch it on the bound.
'Tis Philadelphia's base ball club
That many thousands cheer,
Because the high-priced players bring
The champion's pennant here.

Father, may I grow up to be
A base ball player, too,
And draw a splendid salary,
As many players do?
Then let me put my tasks aside,
My school and books and all,
My youthful days devoting to
The noble game of ball.

AN AUTUMN SCENE.

The Indian Summer's vail of blue
Lies on the mountain far away;
And from the east, forever new,
Dawn ushers in the dreary day.

The air is still, the rivulet gleams
In silver flashes through the vale;
The silken mist above the streams—
Fair path—shines like a glist'ning sail.

I see the squirrel skip and dart
Among the rainbow tinted leaves;
The glossy chestnuts fire his heart—
But for him he never grieves.

Where red and russet orchards stand,
Bowing their burdens to the plain,
The lover takes his loved one's hand
And saunters through the orchard lane.

The clouds are soft that fleck the sky,
The dry leaves rustle past their feet;
But their unclouded reverie
And blissful dreams and visions sweet

Outdo the splendor of the day,
Surpass the glory of the dawn;
The world must pass away
Ere such delights are dead and gone!

I mark their measured steps—and slow—
The cottage gate, the parting kiss;
And think no summers vainly go
That end in such triumphant bliss!

Our Story Teller.

How Father Conquered.

We were a minister's children. Jamie, twelve, slight, straight as an arrow, with the peculiar golden light in the gray eyes that betokens hot temper and brilliant intellect, and masses of fine black hair pushed back from a high, white forehead. Bright, handsome Jamie, how I loved him, with an unquestioning devotion that taught me early to yield my wishes and desires to his imperious will and to shield him in all things, right or wrong, from the severe judgments of our father. I look back now with a feeling of admiration for the homely little Dot, only seven, with her long, tawny braids and great eager eyes, so true to her boy hero.

Of course the familiar expression that ministers' children are worse than any other had oft been repeated before us, and as people evidently expected us to be little heathens we tried hard not to disappoint any one. Lessons on the total depravity of ministers' children in general and we two in particular were as daily food to us. We knew that we were very bad, but we managed to be quite comfortable for such terrible sinners.

Among father's few worldly goods was a beautiful horse, fleet as the wind, and the pride of his heart. Jamie had often taken me with him to the pasture to lead Flighty backward and forward. And on rare occasions when we had gained permission to drive short distances for father we had grown bold and lengthened our drive, always receiving punishment for our boldness, but counting it well worth a whipping to hold the reins and feel the air rush against our faces as Flighty sped down or up the street. One morning that shone out clear as crystal, father spoke of the day as well fitted for shopping in Cleveland, a few miles distant, and as he spoke of train time to mother announced his intention of going by rail. Oh! the winks and the nods and the sly motions that told the story so plainly to me, and how very helpful we grew; of their comfort, how solicitous.

At last, with terrible warning of wrath to be visited on us if we ventured to disobey any of father's commands, we watched them aboard the train, and saw it sweep off down the track, with the fluttering pennons of smoke beckoning gayly to us.

Racing back to the grassy lanes, tossing books and slates into a fence corner, with my pink sun-bonnet on top of the pile, Jamie crowned my tawney braids with his sailor hat and calling me a jolly tar, helped me to pack our lunch. Before kind sister H— who would come and get dinner and mount guard over the parsonage, could reach there, we had packed our basket, harnessed our beautiful Flighty to the carriage and went off for a day in the woods.

Oh, the dinner in the "Old Maid's Kitchen," a cave to be found on the bank of the Cuyahoga river, famous now as the Switzerland of America. The long drive down the road that stretched away in the distance like a silver wire. The depths of cool living green, that lay like a shadow in a barren land. The moss, the violets, the new sounds we heard, the new visions we saw. The delicious coolness of the spring we discovered. The dreams we dreamed of the future. Oh! that summer day. As it waned we collected our treasures and unfastening Flighty from the tree where she had been made safe, we led her to the carriage, and depositing our burdens we drove gayly homeward. Runaways we were, but philosophers as well, for we put the fact of our awaiting punishment as far from our thoughts as possible. We of course expected to be whipped, but did not intend to suffer the sting twice, once in dreading and talking about it, and again in actual pain. As we sped along through the summer evening, we decided that this life was worth the living—"the flame well worth the candle."

Did we feel a presentiment that our placid enjoyment, that this delightful wickedness was soon to end, that we finished our otherwise quiet sort of disobedience by racing through the village streets, huzzaing like young Indians and passing every team with a challenge to follow if they could? Flighty was a thoroughbred and perfectly trained. She kept her head beautifully, or my story might have had another ending. As we drove up to the gate with a grand flourish, the whistle of the train in the distance warned us that our hour of reckoning was close at hand.

After tea I was invited to the study and questioned as to the day's wickedness, I answered respectfully, and, after being reprimanded, was banished to my room. Soon after, I heard father's heavy step in the hall and Jamie's light footfalls following. Leaning far out of my gable window, I watched them enter the barn.

It was a glorious star-lit night, and the silvery whiteness of the moonlight wrapped the world in its spell. Once I thought I heard the pleading voice of my brother. I could bear no more, and slipping out into the hall, stole down stairs and out to the barn.

The lantern was hardly needed, for both front and rear doors being open, the moonlight lay in great bars, white and translucent, giving weird brilliance to the space of floor, and leaving the corners in shadows.

Creeping through the rear door, I stood motionless, watching with wondering eyes the scene painted on my memory as clearly as if years had not dimmed the fire of those luminous eyes, or bowed with weight of care the proud, uplifted head. Father was standing where the light from the lantern, suspended above, fell full on the hair just tinged with gray, and brought into relief the massive forehead and stern blue eyes. His mouth was quivering strangely, and the hand that held the carriage whip seemed, shaking with irresolution. For the first time in my remembrance father hesitated to do what he considered his duty, and met the fearless glance of his only son with such yearning tenderness on his strong, resolute old face as I had never seen there.

"James, my son, do you remember my commands this morning?"

"Yes sir."

"You remember the penalty of your disobedience?"

"Yes sir."

"You know that you must suffer it, do you not?"

"Yes sir."

"Take off your jacket and your vest."

Jamie obeyed, hung them on a peg and came back to his position before father with a hard, sullen expression on his face that showed a spirit to be won, never compelled by blows. Perhaps father saw this, for his hand failed to fall in punishment and his great strong arm stole around the boy's shoulder and folded him closely to father's side.

"Jamie! Jamie! my lad, why do you grieve your old father so?"

If an angel had spoken we could not have been more awe-stricken. Father, who seldom caressed, who was so severe, so stern—father was crying! Jamie was crushed by this sort of thing, and stammered his excuses, and when he felt the tears on his upturned face his heart melted.

"Oh, pa, I didn't know you could feel so bad. Don't, pa, don't."

"Boy, did you think I loved to whip you? Don't you know every blow on your tender flesh makes a deeper, sorer mark on your father's heart? My son! my only son!"

His voice faltered and broke. I shall never forget the tenderness that thrilled every word as he talked.

"I cannot break my word, Jamie; I told you if you disobeyed punishment must follow. Now, my boy, many a time with aching heart have I whipped you, and it seems to have had no lasting effect. I cannot whip you to-night, and I dare not break my word. Take this whip, sir.'

Jamie took the whip, and father quickly laid aside his worn black coat, then his vest, hanging them beside Jamie's; and turning his broad shoulders to the wondering lad, his voice rang like a clarion:

"Jamie, some one must suffer. I can't whip you. You must whip me. Strike, sir!"

The boy stood as if turned to stone.

"Do you hear me, Jamie? Strike!"

White as death grew Jamie's face; his mouth twitched nervously. The whip fell to the floor, and with a cry that came right from his heart Jamie went down on his knees.

"Oh, pa, you may kill me, but I never can strike you!"

How he begged for forgiveness, passionately pleading: "I can't, pa; anything but that!"

What promises of future obedience! But father's will was iron. He would not break his word. He had said so many lashes, and they must be paid. Puzzled and stirred to the depths, what could he do.

What little white-gowned figure is this that creeps out of the shadows and throws itself at his feet, while a child's shrill voice pipes:

'Oh, papa, I have been so wicked; I coaxed Jamie; truly, truly I did! Whip me, papa, and let Jamie go.'

Now if you think this was not an act of heroism I am sorry for you; and then perhaps your father was not a minister.

He lifted his forlorn little daughter from the floor, and as no way out of the dilemma seemed to present itself, Jamie stood by in shame and humiliation while father's hand fell in punishment on his little sister.

Father carried me to my room in his arms, and when I felt his tears splash on my hair a new feeling of love that understands was born in my heart,

If Jamie had been writing this record of our long ago he would have closed with the announcement that never from that day did we venture to run away with Flighty, and as our eyes grew accustomed to see the love written in every line of father's face we grew to watch for the smile of approval and weep over his displeasure.

But alas! I must add one more testimony to the weakness of my sex, and just whisper how, early the next morning, standing on the veranda, where the lilacs swung their fragrant cluster against the study window, I ventured to say: "Jamie, don't you almost wish, when pa's back was right in front of you so, that you had just given him a couple of good cuts—he has given you so many?"

Jamie had no chance to reply, for the lilacs were held aside from the window and father's voice called, "daughter." Trembling little wretch, I need not have feared. Father was one of those rare men who have learned to 'let well enough alone,' and only kissed me with his unusual tenderness as he led me out to breakfast.—Mary L. Wright.

An Arizona Cloudburst.

Sunday afternoon about two weeks ago one of those curious phenomena of nature occurred about thirty miles southwest of Tucson, and from the description given by eye witnesses, it was the largest cloudburst ever known in this country. From Judge R. D. Ferguson the following account was gathered: On Sunday he was returning from a trip to the southern part of the county. At 10 o'clock he put up at Brown's Station, to await dinner and avoid the heat of the day. The sky all day was cloudless, except a thunder storm that was observed traveling the summits of the Santa Catalinas and disappearing over the Rincons in the northeast. Otherwise not a cloud or a vapor of any kind was to be seen. The sun was shining in all his vigor, and as he passed to the west his strength and glory seemed undiminished.

At 3 o'clock Judge Ferguson resumed his journey toward Tucson. He had come about five miles when his attention was attracted by a roaring and cracking toward the west, and looking up he saw a river of water as big as the Santa Cruz when it runs through Warner's mill tail race, and coming toward him. Telling his driver to halt, they stopped on top of a little knoll and watched the waters as they violently plowed the desert, tearing up stones and brush. They had evidently spent their force. After the flood had passed by the face of the country was disfigured, and a large gutter had been cut across the valley. The current came down off a small range of low, rolling hills to the west. Although the judge and his companion strained their eyes in the direction from which the water came, not a cloud was to be seen. After the water had subsided sufficiently to let them pass, they went on. They had hardly gone half a mile when, to their utter astonishment, here was another stream equally as large as the first one. Again they peered toward the west as if to find some indication of its source. Passing on their astonishment was doubled to find another stream, and in this manner five successive raging currents were crossed. But all their reserve was called forth when four miles from where the struck the first stream they discovered a sixth one as large as all the others combined. Its angry waters were waving and hissing as if maddened at the resistance they met on their way from the hills down to the desert. This river was unfordable and to cross it was impossible, so they halted on a knoll and watched it for two or three hours as it boiled and sizzed and cut a bed for itself, in some places as deep as fifteen and over 200 yards wide. It was not till after sundown that they dared attempt a crossing.

What renders it so curious it that no one at Brown's station saw the clouds. It may be possible that some hidden springs were uncorked by some subterranean earthquake. At any rate it is a great wonder.

A Concord school philosopher has shown that "reality signifies existence in and for the world of phenomena, while actuality is reality, plus possibility of potentiality." That's plain enough now. These Concord philosophers are pretty smart, but we don't believe they can tell the age of a doughnut from the corrugated appearance of its back.

At the close of a missionary sermon preached in a country parish, the whole audience was affected to tears, except one peasant. On being asked why he was not affected like the others, he explained that it was because he was only a visitor and he did not belong to that parish at all.

Pulled the Line.

Arkansaw Traveler.

An old squatter boarded a train the other day, and sat with an air of deep concern, watching the conductor and brakeman. He noticed that when the conductor pulled the rope the train stopped, and he did not understand how so much power could be attached to such a cord, but determined not to exhibit that quality which he had so often crushed—inquisitiveness—he remained quiet. He looked out of the window at the whirling farm houses and fences that seemed to be trying to keep up with the train, and his straw hat blew off. Springing from his seat he gave the bell cord a vigorous pull and the train soon came to a stand still. The old fellow got off and found his hat near the steps, where it had been carried along by the motion of the train. When he re-entered the coach, the conductor was furious. He pulled the bell rope as though he wouuld break it, and turning to the old fellow demanded:

'What the devil have you been doing?"

"Drapped my hat and snatched the clothes line. Anything outen order? Hope I didn't break nuthin'."

"I wish you had broken your head, and I am a mind to put you off, confound you"

"You ken confound me as much as you please, mister, but I'll be dinged if it wouldn't take a good one to put me off."

"Why did you ring that bell?"

"What made me jerk the clothesline? I told you that I drapped my hat."

"Your hat's not worth fifteen cents."

"Not to you, mister, because it ain't your'n. It ain't wuth nutnin' to you, but she's all I've got, and dinged if I don't stop your contrapshun every time she flips off."

"Pull that rope again and I'll leave you in the woods."

"You may leave me, but be dogged if I leave my my hat, and when ever she flips, look out."

"If you don't want to lose your hat don't look out the window."

"The window was put here to look outen, and I'm goin' to look outen it."

After while the train stopped on a bridge, and the old fellow looked out. A gust of wind blew his hat off and it fell into the river.

"Thar!" he exclaimed. "Danged if she ain't gone."

"What's the matter asked the conductor who had witnessed the calamity.

"Yonder she goes," said the fellow, pointing. "Sad loss to me."

The conductor laughed. "How did she happen to go?"

"Jes' look out thar," said the squatter, "an see that fish airter the hat, will you. Jes' look at nim!"

The conductor looked out and the old fellow tipped his hat over into the river. "Scuse haste an' a bad pen," he said with a grin.

The conductor looked at him a moment and said:

"What do you drink, old fellow?"

"Everything stronger than water."

"Here is some very fine brandy," and he handed the old fellow a half pint flask. "Take a drink as a sympathizer of misfortune. We are in the same boat, you see, and I must confess that you have beaten me. Touch it light. A little of it goes a long ways."

He turned up the flask, drained the last drop and said: "Ah, a little of it does go a long ways—goes all the way an' holds a log rollin' as she travels. Take the bottle an' fill her up again at the fust opportunity."

The conductor looked at the old fellow and then the flask, but didn't say anything.

The Birth Place of Hawthorne.

The dilapidated appearance of Poe's house, the unkempt misery of its empty rooms and neglected garden reminded me forcibly of the little house in Salem, Mass., where Nathaniel Hawthorne first saw the light. I hunted it out in the early part of the Summer, at the end of a drive from the village of Marblehead. Salem cherishes the memory of its martyred witches with singular veneration, hoarding canes and trinkets down to their very shoelatchets behind glass cases in its Historical Society Museum, but the birth-place of America's greatest novelist is unmarked and put to the most menial uses. It is down a side street, or, rather, lane, in the least tidy part of the town. The threshold almost overhangs the curb. A blind man walking in the middle of the street and swinging his cane would touch the houses on either side.

Three peremptory attacks upon the brazen knocker failed to bring any response, and we were on the point of turning away when a head was thrust out of an upper window, and an ungracious voice inquired, "Phwat d'ye want?" "To see Hawthorne's house." "Well, look at it, then," and the window was run down with a slam. After inspecting its square ugliness, from the baseboard to the eaves, until our eyes were tired, a lady in the party, remarking that "she was going in," gave the yellow nose of the gripper another twist and stood back to await developments. They came in the form of a belligerant Milesian woman, who stood in the doorway with her sleeves rolled up and her arms making triangles with irregular base lines on each side, an attitude full of indignant menace. "Could we see the room in which Hawthorne was born?" the lady who had knocked asked deprecatingly.

"Well, I'm washing, and the children are to school, but since you are so generous, ye may." (Slipping the silver into her pocket and leading us into a tiny hall from which a crooked stairway climbed to the next story.) "The room on the right with the quare paper. Excuse the looks o' things, for I'm that worrited wid my work and the children and never get a chance to clean nothing."

We believed her, and also when she said that the room had not been altered since it was built. The bed might have seen service in the eighteenth century, and its mahogany frame was still whole, though much scratched and tarnished about the foot-board. The ceiling was low, the paper hung in moldy patches from the walls, and where it was stripped off entirely and the plaster gaped and crumbled the bareness was rendered more conpicuous by an attempt made to conceal it with chromos of the Mother and Child. There was a gilt shrine on the bureau with a statuette of the Virgin; these and some of little candles half burned showed the religious leanings of the present occupants of the room.

A New Theory of Love.

Clara Bell in Cincinnati Enquirer.

What is all this finery for? Does it make men admire us? Or love us? Have fine feathers really anything to do with fascinating these male birds? Sentiment is beyond me, anyhow. A journalistic friend assured me that sympathy was the great inciter of love. He said that the Rev. Dr. Buckley told him of having met in an asylum, two beautiful and accomplished women, who were teachers in the institution and the wives of deaf and dumb men. They might have had their pick, to a reasonable extent, from among men with full faculties, and yet they had chosen husbands who never had and never could speak or hear a word. The two matches had proved so agreeable that a young heiress of the neighborhood was betrothed to a third pupil. Dr. Buckley has convinced himself that sympathy in these instances begot love. The Rev. Dr. Newman was in the party, and my friend quotes him as dissenting from that theory and saying, "A woman invariably has an ideal man in her mind for a husband. She doesn't often find his counterpart in reality. Now, what is it that usually disillusionizes her? It is the man's talk. He looks like a very commonplace mortal. Now a deaf mute doesn't let himself down in that way. His methods of conversation are so laborious that he doesn't resort to them unless he has something to say. He remains a hero in the estimation of the woman whom he impresses favorably by his person, and she falls in love with him for good and all."

So we had better stop dressing carefully and hold our tongues in case this theory is sound and reversible as to sexes.

In Case of Drowning.

From Life.

1. Go through his pockets.

2. If there are any trees around hang the subject up by the legs to let the water run out. If you are in the city a lamp post will answer.

3. If the subject be a small man pummel him with your fists to start the circulation. If he be a large man give him a shock with a galvanic battery.

4. Endeavor to start circulation by blowing in his nostrils with a pair of bellows. If you can't get a pair take one.

5. Pour down his throat a mixture of 476 brandy, 2.29 ipecac, 1.07 paregoric, 1.00 ammonia, .88 Winsloe's soothing syrup. Be very careful to get the exact proportions.

6. If the above remedies produce no effects, as a last hope, sing "Wait till the Clouds Roll By" to him, or read him a funny article from Punch. If he then show no signs of writhing let him be. He was born to be drowned.

6. Go through his pockets again.

All Sorts.

"Ma, is Mr. Thompson respectable?" "Certainly, my child, why do you ask that question?" "Because he wears such poor clothes." "You should not judge persons by their clothes; none but silly people do that." "Then everybody's silly—ain't they, ma?"

Hoadly Elected.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 10.—12.30 p. m.—We have returns from seventeen democratic counties and thirteen republican counties, including Cuyahoga, which show a net democratic gain of 69, Hamilton county not included, which will show a republican gain of 8,000. This leaves Hoadly with a majority of 11,000, which Foraker will not probably overcome.

1.30 p. m.—Returns from seventeen republican and twenty-six democratic counties, including Cuyahoga, but not Hamilton county, show net democratic gains of 2,219. The second amendment gets 14,000 votes in Cuyahoga, out of a total vote of 35,000.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 20.—Nearly complete unofficial returns in this county give Hoadly 425 majority. There is an apparent majority against the second amendment of 35,000. Heisly and Blondin, (democrats) are elected judges of the court of common pleas. Judge Whitbeck, (republican) is elected treasurer by 700 majority, and Brew, (republican) for auditor, has about 3,000 majority.

COLUMBUS, October 10.—Returns from eighty counties and others estimated give the state to the democrats by 12,000 majority, and the legislature by 20 to 25 democratic majority on joint ballot. The second amendment will come close to adoption.

CINCINNATI, October 10.—11 p. m.—No complete compilation of returns from Hamilton county has yet been made up. Some of the precincts were not counted by the judges until tonight.

Iowa Firm.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—The Tribune's resume of the Iowa election says: At the hour of writing, 3 a. m., the indications are that Iowa has been carried by the Republicans by a majority of 25,000 to 30,000. The Democratic gains in the river counties was not as heavy as was expected. In Scott county, for example, the vote was relatively the same as that for secretary of state last year. In Dubuque county the Democratic majority was much less. The Republicans, on the other hand, made some losses in the interior counties, where gains were expected.

CHICAGO, Oct 10.—The following private dispatch was received here this afternoon from Hon. J. S. Clarkson, editor the Des Moines Register:

"DES MOINES, Iowa, October 10.—Sherman will have 28,000 to 30,000 majority over Kinne and 12,000 over all. The Republicans will have 42 senators to 8 Democrats at the lowest, as things now look. In the house we feel sure of 10 or 12 majority, but it may be cut down to six or eight, and it may be but four or five, but there cannot be less than thirty of a republican majority on joint ballot and I think not less than forty-two. Kinne concedes the election of Sherman by 15,000 over him.

An Incident on Election Day.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 10.—In most of the precincts they industriously distributed both tickets impartially to get votes for prohibition. Coffee and cakes were served to whoever was thought to be favorable to the anti-liquor cause. Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, of Iowa, the reputed author of the prohibition enactment of that state, was on the ground and going from ward to ward in a carriage directing the temperance forces. Mottoes were profusely displayed at the Second Amendment headquarters like the following: "Betty and the Baby vs. Boodle and Beer." "Vote for the Second Amendment and Down will go the Saloons and Up will go the Home and Our Boys," and "Vote for Sally and the Babies." The ladies were treated with great respect at the polls. W. N. Rose, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, has undoubtedly carried this county, and the chances favor his election. Cuyahoga on the rest of the ticket has probably gone Democratic by a small majority.

A General Jail Delivery.

LANCASTER, October 10.—A general jail delivery occurred at the Lancaster county prison early this morning. Only two watchmen were on duty. Ike Buzzard, one of the notorious brothers of that name, succeeded in getting out of his cell and locking them in. Securing the cell keys he released eleven companions, the worst criminals in the jail. After helping themselves to what food they could find, they all left by the front door taking the the keys with them, having in the meantime interrupted telephone communications with the city. The following are the names of the escaped prisoners: John Frankford, horse thief; Geo. Brimmer, incendiary; Abel and Ike Buzzard, John Wertz, Joe Groff, Maurice Bricker, Alex. Lemon. Geo. Watkins, John Clifforn, Wm, Clark and Edward Beck. The fugitives were serving sentences ranging from five to nineteen years.

Chicago's Big Defaulter.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Frederick M. Ker, the defaulting cashier of Preston Kean & Co., bankers, had a hearing on a habeas corpus before Judge Drummond to-day. He was arrested in Peru, and he sets up a plea that he is a British subject and was kidnapped by United States officials. Judge Drummond said that Ker should have made application to the Government of Peru for protection, and while he would deny the petition he remarked that the case involved a number of delicate points of international law, which he would like to see presented to the Supreme Court. Ker's counsel say the matter will be appealed.

"Another lie nailed," remarked the bad citizen to the editor, as he saw him tacking up a copy of his paper on a bulletin.

Mustaches.

Especially dedicated to "Skinny" and "Knox," both of Bellefonte, Pa.

Oh, yes; "Skinny and Knox" are determined
To raise mustaches for Spring,
And their friends wait with Job's patience
To see what their efforts will bring.

Ha! ha! such an idea is preposterous
They may just as well try to fly,
For a mustache is as far from their possession
As the earth is far from the sky.

I suppose the barber has told them,
As he has told many before,
That they can raise splendid mustaches
If they try for six months or more.

The rascals have told me that often,
But success never came to me.
I know further effort will be useless
And I've concluded to leave my lips be.

But try to do the best you can, boys;
And if assistance you need,
Call on Beck, the boss barber,
And he will coax it along with feed.

A FALL POET.

The Dark Messenger.

Another aged resident has passed away—one who was four score years and more. Miss Ann Cathcart, who for many years has resided in Roopsburg, near this place, died on Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock. She was 85 years old on the 3d day of September last. Until 7 o'clock on Tuesday evening she seemed to be perfectly well and during the day had been assisting a neighbor to core apples for cider. But illness came fast and fatal and at the time mentioned the death damp was on her brow.

She, with her father, three sisters, a brother and a nephew came to this place from Dauphin county many years ago and resided for some time where Mr. Thomas Reynolds' residence now stands. But all her near relatives passed away, the last one—a sister—expiring about 12 years ago. She lived alone, but was cared for by affectionate neighbors. She owned the house in which she lived and also several acres of ground surrounding it. A niece of the deceased—Mrs. Hicks—resides in Dauphin county.

The funeral was held on Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

—The language of the postage stamp is the latest caprice. It conveys certain signs and messages according to how it is placed on the envelope. It is supposed to have been invented by an old bachelor, who was fond of writing to the ladies, but wished to avoid a breach of promise case. Placed on the left hand corner upside down means that the writer loves you. In the same corner just crosswise, "My heart belongs to another." But quite straight it says "Good Bye." If just upside down in the right hand corner it means "You must write no more." If placed on the centre it means, "Yes." Centre of the bottom, "No." If just crosswise in the right hand corner it asks "Do you love me?" The left hand corner at the bottom means, "I wish your friendship." If just on a line on the left hand side of the surname it means, "Accept my love." Upside down on the same line, "I am engaged." If on the right hand, "I long to see you." Upside down on the same, "I perish for a kiss."—Ex.

Maier—Whitehill.

The wedding ceremony which united Mr. Victor Maier and Miss Florence Whitehill at Milesburg on Wednesday evening was beautiful and impressive. About twenty-five guests were present and numerous elegant presents were received. Rev. William Laurie officiated in his most graceful style. The evening train conveyed Mr. and Mrs. Maier to Williamsport whence they returned on Saturday. Mr. Maier is an excellent young gentleman and his bride one of the finest young ladies in this community. We wish them joy.

—The man with the lifting machine was in town on Thursday of last week. The highest weight lifted when we left at 11 o'clock was 675 lbs., although the owner of the machine spurred the men on by the information that an Altoona man had lifted 800 pounds on Wednesday. We did not try it for fear we might lift so much as to discourage all future attempts and injure the man's business.

A Jailer Bucked and Gagged.

CLINTON, La., Oct. 9.—To-day, while Jailer Bailroad was attending to his usual duties in the jail he was seized by the prisoners, bucked and gagged and had his pistol taken from him. He was then locked up in a cell and the six prisoners deliberately walked out and made for the woods. Their escape was quickly discovered and the citizens pursued them, capturing four of them. It is believed the others will be caught.

A $125,000 Fire.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., October 10.—"Spring hurst," the summer residence of T. W. Pearsal, a New York banker at Gover's Hill, was burned this morning, also the greater portion of the elegant furniture. Everything about the house was of the most costly material. The house was finished a year and a half ago at a cost of over one hundred thousand dollars. Loss, $125,000; insurance, $50,000.

By one of the Fools.

"Why—pardon my remarking it—but, my dear old friend, how changed you are. I declare you must have lived very high or very fast to have driven the color out of your hair and the spring out of your step in this fashion."

Looking at the sunset on the river from the grounds of his place up the Hudson, my school chum—who is one of the best known mining experts in the country—answered: "It wasn't fast living did it but dyspepsia and nervous collapse, from over-work. I ought to have stopped years before I did. I was a fool. But who isn't, if you come to that?"

"I am thirty-five years old," writes Mr Charles H. Watts, of West Somers, Putnam Co., N. Y., "and had suffered from dyspepsia for fifteen years. Went the round of the current remedies, falsely so called. Listlessly and without hope I gave PARKER'S TONIC a trial. The result may be stated in three words: it cured me. I endorse now without hesitation. It is the dyspeptic's refuge." Mr. G. R Cole, druggist, of Carmel, N. Y., certifies to the truth of Mr. Watts' statement.

HISCOX & Co., proprietors, call especial attention to the fact that this preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be called simply PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior articles under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, we drop the misleading word

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac-simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

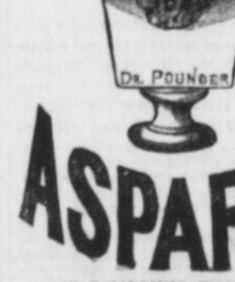
CATARRH A Positive Cure.



HAY-FEVER

A gentleman from Orwell, Pa., called my attention to Ely's Cream Balm as a remedy for catarrh, hay fever, &c. He was so in earnest in asserting it to be a positive cure that I purchased a stock. P. F. HYATT, M. D., Bordentown, N. J.

APPLY by little finger into the nostrils. By absorbtion it effectually cleanses the nasal passages of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores the senses of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment will cure. Unequaled for colds in head. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Sold by druggists. By mail 50c a package—stamps.

Like an Evil Spirit.

In olden times it was thought that evil spirits came in through cracks and keyholes. The generally approved way to keep them out was to plug up the keyholes and stop the cracks with cotton. Notwithstanding these preventive measures, the evil things had their own way and often came in as they pleased.

So comes malaria now-a-days. We try to keep it out of the keyhole and it comes in by the crack. We stop up the crack, and lo! it comes from a leak in the plumbing, or an opening from some neglected drain, or from some unsuspected source and unguarded direction.

We cannot always keep malaria out, but we can give it battle and drive its effects from our systems. If BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is taken in time, malaria has not a ghost of a chance. This is the great family medicine. Your druggist sells it, and you ought to keep a bottle in the house. I

How Watch Cases are Made.

In 1875, thirteen men comprised the entire working force used in the manufacture of the James Boss' Gold Watch Case. Now over five hundred are employed, and the number is constantly increasing. The reason of this increase is this: In the James Boss' Gold Watch Case all the metal in sight and subject to wear is solid gold, while the remainder, which only lends strength to the case, is of stronger metal than gold, giving gold where gold is needed, and strong, elastic metal where strength and elasticity are needed, a combination producing a watch case better than solid gold and at ONE-HALF the cost.

Over 200,000 of these cases have been sold, and every jeweler in the country can testify to their quality and merit.

LUDINGTON, MICH., Dec. 5, 1882.

E. W. Marsh, of the Democrat, bought a Jas. Boss' Gold Watch case 18 years ago, and carried it until a short time ago, when I purchased it, and sold it to a customer. The case showed no signs of wear, except that natural to any case, and I am satisfied can be safely guaranteed for at least ten years more. I have sold the James Boss' Gold Watch Case for many years, and the parties who bought the first ones are carrying them to-day, as well satisfied as though they had bought a solid gold case costing twice the money. I regard them as the only cases of this kind a jeweler should sell who desires to give his customers the worth of their money or values his reputation.

WM. J. CUSHWAY, Jeweler.

Striking Miners.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 14.—A special from Bradford, Pa., to the Dispatch, says. "There were no new developments in the miners' strike to-day. Trouble is expected to begin at 7 a. m. to-morrow when 600 miners in the employ of the Rochester and Pittsburg railroad will try to resume work. The strikers are heavily armed and encamped near the mines. The railroad officers fear a bloody time and will use every precaution to protect their men. One official said: The mines will be opened at all hazards to-morrow, and we expect the strikers will resort to violence but we are prepared for them in every way. Our mines are guarded by 100 detectives fully armed. If there is an attempt to forcibly hinder our men there will be bloodshed. The detectives are accustomed to deal with roughs, and as most of them are good shots they can make terrific havoc among the strikers. A force of fifty of Pinkerton police passed through Pittsburg last night, and twelve more under the command of Captain Foley arrived from Chicago to-night. The car contained twenty mattresses for the use of the men. The entire force will remain on duty until the matter is settled. It is reported to night that every precaution has been made to open by force the mines at Reynoldsville. Over 2,000 are encamped at the mines. The owners have engaged special policemen and will resume work, they say, if it becomes necessary to kill off the whole force of strikers.

The Episcopal Liturgy.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—The joint committee on liturgical enrichment, whose report has been under consideration by the house of deputies in committee of the whole, was for the first time overruled yesterday. After a two days' debate, in which the most learned deputies took part, the committee's recommendation that the date of the reintroduced feast of the transfiguration should be fixed on January 18 was not agreed to, and an amendment that August 6 be substituted was carried by a vote of 151 yeas to 85 nays. Perhaps the argument which had more force than any other in carrying the amendment through was that the feast was now observed by the church east and west on August 6, and that it would be unwise to place the American body in opposition to every other branch of the church throughout the world. A number of proposed amendments to the canons and constitution were submitted, and an invitation was extended to Lord Chief Justice Coleridge to be present at the sessions of the house.

Young Men held to Account.

READING, Oct. 12.—The synod of the Reformed church in the United States to-day deprecated the disinclination of young men to enter the ministry as against more profitable callings in life, and passed a resolution that earnest efforts be put forth to induce young men to enter the ministry. The synod decided that every Reformed minister shall, on the occasion of the anniversary of the 400th birthday of Ulrich Swingli, the reformer, in January next, preach a memorial sermon.

A Woman's Body Cremated.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 11.—The remains of Mrs. I. French, of the city of New York, were cremated to-day. Her corpse, accompanied by J. French, a son, arrived about noon, and upon reaching the crematory were placed in the retort and the door hermetically closed. The ashes will be sent to the son as soon as the retort cools sufficiently to allow their removal.

Andrew-Thayer.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The marriage of John F. Andrew, son of the War Governor, and Miss Harriet Thayer, daughter of the late Nathaniel Thayer, was the event of the season. Trinity Church was thronged at noon, when the ceremony took place. Within the great auditorium was made the most magnificent floral display ever seen in Boston. The chancel was buried in flowers and over-spanning all was an immense arch of rare exotics twenty feet high; the keystone was a monogram of immortelles, the initial of the family name of the bride being in red and that of the groom in white. The whole display cost thousands of dollars. The company present was brilliant and fashionable. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Phillips Brooks. The bride has just come into possession of a fortune of over eight million dollars, which is half the estate of her father, who died a few months ago leaving sixteen millions to his two children. An imposing reception followed the ceremony, the palatial residence of the Thayers, on Mt. Vernon street, Beacon Hill, being thrown open.

Going through the Niagara Rapids.

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 10.—The Maid of the Mist was towed by oarsmen in skiffs to the centre of the river this afternoon and set adrift. Several men wanted the privilege of going through on the craft, but all were refused. James Scott of Lewiston hid himself aboard. He was discovered soon afterward and was compelled to jump into the water and swim ashore. The boat was tossed about for three minutes. The strong wind blew the Maid toward the American shore, and she went around the bend and down the river, escaping the whirlpool entirely. She was recovered near Lewiston. Subsequently a scow fourteen feet long, carrying a sail, was sent into the rapids. The boat was dismasted and overturned once. In the whirlpool it was thrice seized by the contending currents, stood upon end and sucked beneath the surface, reappearing the first two times. The spectacle was altogether better than that afforded by the Maid of the Mist.

Ohio Elections

COLUMBUS, Oct. 11.—The more complete returns from Tuesday's election indicate an increase in the democratic majority which will probably be considerably over 12,000. The senate will be two to one democratic, and the house is estimated at 43 republicans and 62 democrats. Later returns of the legislative ticket indicate that the democratic majority on joint ballot will not be more than 24. The second amendment will receive about 300,000 votes, and will probably be adopted except that cities go strongly against it. The judicial amendment is carried beyond doubt. The first amendment will not get over 100,000 votes. The prohibition vote is estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000, and the Greenback 2,000.

Earthquake in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—An earthquake shock was felt here at 1 o'clock this morning. It was the most severe in several years. The shock this morning was the heaviest experienced here since the great one of 1868. Buildings groaned, metallic roofings cracked, and many persons rushed half-dressed from houses and hotels. The recollection of its being within one day of the anniversary of the earthquake of 1868 seemed to increase their fears, and many people walked the streets all night in preference to reentering their houses. Earthquakes are reported to have occurred during the night and morning at several places along the coast. The weather is oppressive.

A Hand-car Accident.

OSHKOSH, Wis., Oct. 11.—As Mr. Trougert, a section boss on the Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, his wife and baby, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Trougert and her husband and child, were riding on a hand-car, near Waukon yesterday, the hat of Mrs. Trougert blew off, and in attempting to grasp it her baby slipped out of her hands in front of the car. The child was caught on the gear wheels and instantly killed. The car was thrown from the track and those upon it were hurled some distance. Both women are probably fatally injured, and the other child will die.

Folger's Reply.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Secretary Folger has written a reply to Senator Garland who recently presented a claim of the state of Arkansas for moneys alleged to be due under the deposit act of June 23, 1833, in which he says: "Since the indebtedness of the United States has been sufficient to absorb surplus revenues, I understand that the usage of the department has been to look upon the deposit act as being at least suspended, if not entirely obsolete. Until otherwise directed by congress I am disposed to concur in that usage.

From Iowa.

DES MOINES, Oct. 11.—Sherman's majority will be at least 30,000 and his plurality not less than 12,000. The lower house is close. The republicans now have fifty-four and the opposition forty-one. Of the remaining five the republicans are likely to get three. In the senate the republicans have thirty-seven and the opposition eight. Five senatorial districts are in doubt. The democrats have elected Judge Cook in the Sixth congressional district by a small majority.

THE HIGHEST AUTHORITY.

Upon a Subject of Vital Interest, Effecting the Welfare of All.

The following remarkable letter from one of the leading and best known scientific writers of the present day is specially significant, and should be of unusual value to all readers who desire to keep pace with the march of modern discoveries and events:

"A general demand for reformation is one of the most distinctive characteristics of the nineteenth century. The common people, as well as the more enlightened and refined cry out with no uncertain voice to be emancipated from the slavery of conservatism and superstition which has held the masses in gross ignorance during a large portion of the world's history, and in the time of the 'Dark Ages' came near obliterating the last glimmer of truth. Dogmatic assertions and blind empiricisms are losing caste among all classes of all countries. People are beginning to think for themselves, and to regard authority much less than argument. Men and women are no longer willing that a few individuals should dictate to them what must be their sentiments and opinions. They claim the right to solve for themselves the great questions of the day and demand that the general good of humanity shall be respected. As the result of this general awakening, we see, on every hand, unmistakable evidences of reformatory action. People who, a few years ago, endured suffering the most intense in the name of duty, now realize the utter foolishness of such a course. Men who were under the bondage of bigoted advisers allowed their health to depart; suffered their constitutions to be undermined and finally died as martyrs to a false system of treatment. There are millions of people filling untimely graves who might have lived to a green old age had their original troubles been taken in time or properly treated. There are thousands of people to-day thoughtlessly enduring the first symptoms of some serious malady and without the slightest realization of the danger that is before them. They have occasional headaches; a lack of appetite one day and a ravenous one the next, or an unaccountable feeling of weariness, sometimes accompanied by nausea and attribute all these troubles to the old idea of 'a slight cold' or malaria. It is high time that people awoke to a knowledge of the seriousness of these matters and emancipated themselves from the professional bigotry which controls them. When this is done and when all classes of physicians become liberal enough to exclude all dogmas, save that it is their duty to cure disease as quickly and as safely as possible; to maintain no other position than that of truth honestly ascertained, and to endorse and recommend any remedy that has been found useful, no matter what its origin, there will be no more quarreling among the doctors, while there will be great rejoicing throughout the world."

"I am well aware of the censure that will be meted out to me for writing this letter but I feel that I cannot be true to my honest convictions unless I extend a helping hand and endorse all that I know to be good. The extended publications for the past few years, and graphic descriptions of different diseases of the kidneys and liver have awakened the medical profession to the fact that these diseases are greatly increasing. The treatment of the doctors has been largely experimental and many of their patients have died while they were casting about for a remedy to cure them."

"It is now over two years since my attention was first called to the use of a most wonderful preparation in the treatment of Bright's disease of the kidneys. Patients had frequently asked me about the remedy and I had heard of remarkable cures effected by it, but like many others I hesitated to recommend its use. A personal friend of mine had been in poor health for some time and his application for insurance on his life had been rejected on account of Bright's disease. Chemical and microscopical examinations of his urine revealed the presence of large quantities of albumen and granular tube casts, which confirmed the correctness of the diagnosis. After trying all the usual remedies, I directed him to use this preparation and was greatly surprised to observe a decided improvement within a month, and within four months no tube casts could be discovered. At that time there was present only a trace of albumen, and he felt, as he expressed it, 'perfectly well,' and all through the influence of Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy he used."

"After this I prescribed this medicine in full doses in both acute and chronic nephritis (Bright's disease), and with the most satisfactory results. My observations were neither small in number nor hastily made. They extended over several months and embraced a large number of cases which have proved so satisfactory to my mind, that I would earnestly urge upon my professional brethren the importance of giving a fair and patient trial to Warner's Safe Cure. In a large class of ailments where the blood is obviously in an unhealthy state, especially where glandular engorgements and inflammatory eruptions exist, indeed in many of those forms of chronic indisposition in which there is no evidence of organic mischief, but where the general health is depleted, the face sallow, the urine colored, constituting the condition in which the patient is said to be 'bilious,' the advantage gained by the use of this remedy is remarkable. In Bright's disease it seems to act as a solvent of albumen; to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes; to wash out the epithelial debris which blocks up the tubuli uriniferi, and to prevent a destructive metamorphosis of tissue."

"Belonging as I do to a branch of the profession that believes no one school of medicine knows all the truth regarding the treatment of disease, and being independent enough to select any remedy that will relieve my patients, without reference to the source from whence it comes, I am glad to acknowledge and commend the merits of this remedy thus frankly.

Respectfully yours,
R. A. GUNN, M. D.,

Dean and Professor of Surgery, United States Medical College of New York; editor of Medical Tribune; author of Gunn's New and Improved Hand-Book of Hygiene and Domestic Medicine, etc., etc.

Steam Heating Points.

Much is expected from the steam heating process.

Cyrus Gorden, Esq., of Clearfield, says that it works like a charm in that place.

At one time it was said that all arrangements relating to it would be completed by the advent of Thanksgiving and a new cause for the earnest observance of that day would be given to the people of Bellefonte. But, if appearances are not deceptive, steam heating will be delayed longer than that, and if the legislature remains in session how multitudinous will be the causes of regret and sorrow. One hope remains—perhaps the turkeys and mince pies will be better and more abundant than usual.

In ten days from date the engine house on Lamb street will be ready for operation. Then the trenches will be dug and pipe laid.

Estimates on the cost of heating churches by the new process are becoming prominent subjects of inquiry. All questions are answered in the affirmative.

What the members of the gas company don't know about steam heating is not worth learning.

A "Camp Fire" Declared "Off."

Post 122 of Department of Pennsylvania, G. A. R., of Lock Haven, had arranged for a great "camp fire and bean bake" to be given to the posts of this section of the country, but owing to the railroad company delaying their answer in regard to rates of fare over the B. E. V. R. R. until too late to prepare for the occasion, it is declared "off." The G. A. R. boys of Centre are very sorry as they have all been anticipating it, knowing that No. 122 never does anything by halves. The above information in regard to the matter comes from Comrade James Devling, chairman of the committee on "bean bake."

EDITOR'S TABLE.

THE CIRCULATION OF THE CENTURY.—In "Topics of the Time," of the October Century, the editor says: "The magazine enters upon its fourteenth annual 'fall campaign,' we are happy to say, with a circulation and an audience numbering thousands beyond those of the last or of any former year in its history."

This is one of the best magazines published. We can cheerfully recommend it. Address, Century Company, New York.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR OCTOBER, though the last number of the present volume, is by no means the least in respect to the quality of its contents, and opens with a beautiful poem by Philip Bourke Marston, entitled "Summer Changes," which is followed by the second part of Louisa M. Alcott's charming child story "Little Pyramus and Thisbe."

All big and little people who are fond of pets will read with interest about a big and a little pet of which John R. Coryell writes. They are respectively an elephant seal which was once tanned by a sailor, and which was the "Largest Pet in the World," and a Breton "Midget Sheep" so small as to hide behind a bucket. There is also an entertaining chapter on army pets in Harry M. Kieffer's "Recollections of a Drummer-boy," together with an amusing anecdote of how General Grant once had to go thirsty.

These and many other interesting things for the little folks will be found in the October number. This magazine needs no recommendation from us; it is known to be first class. Address, Century Company, New York.

THE PEACEMAKER FOR OCTOBER is on our table. This magazine is in its third year. It is devoted to the advocacy of a cause which should be near to the heart of every good person. It is neatly printed and is sold for $1.00 a year, or 10 cents a number, which is very cheap. Address, The Peacemaker, 302-4-6 Race street, Philadelphia.

"GOLDEN DAYS" FOR OCTOBER is present with us. This is a magazine for the boys and girls, and a very interesting one. There is no boy or girl in Centre county that would not be made happy by reading this journal and looking at the beautiful pictures. Parents, take it for your children; you will never regret it. Terms, $3 00 per year, or 25 cents a number. James Elverson, publisher, 9th and Spruce streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

ALL sportsmen would enjoy the perusal of The American Angler, a journal devoted exclusively to fish and fishing. Terms, $3.00 a year. Address, Angler Publishing Co., 252 Broadway, New York.

THE pages of the October Eclectic will be found highly readable and attractive. The opening article on "Luther," by James Anthony Froude, is a brilliant and vigorous study of the great German reformer, which is very seasonable in view of the recent tercentennial celebrations in Germany. M. Leon Say, the eminent French diplomat and publicist, says some pregnant words, marked by both acuteness and moderation, on the Franco-English problem in Egypt. Mr. Edward A. Freeman, the distinguished English historian, contributes an interesting sketch of John Richard Green, whose recent death left a gap among the great contemporary historians, and many other subjects of deep interest. The Eclectic should be in the hands of every person who lays any claim to literary accomplishments. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond street, New York. Terms, $5 per year; single copy, 45 cents. For sale by all newsdealers.

AMERICAN COUNTING ROOM.—We have received a copy of this excellent magazine and pronounce it a good thing. Every business man should have it. NOTICE is hereby given, "That every person executing office of justice of the peace who shall hold any office or appointment of any profit or trust under the government of the United States, or of this State, or of any city or incorporated district, whether a commissioned officer or otherwise, subordinate officer or agent who is or shall be employed under the Legislative, Executive or Judiciary Department of this State, or of the United States, or of any city or incorporated district; and also that every member of Congress or State Legislature, and of the select or common council of any city, or commissioners of any incorporated district, is by law incapable of holding or exercising, at the same time, the office or appointment for Judge, Inspector or Clerk of an election of this Commonwealth; and that no Inspector, Judge or other officer of any such election shall be eligible to any office to be then voted for."

At all elections held under the laws of the Commonwealth, the polls shall be opened at 7 o'clock a. m. and close at 7 o'clock p. m.

TICKETS TO BE VOTED.

The qualified electors will take notice of the following acts of Assembly, approved the 12th day of March, 1866; "An Act regulating the mode of voting at all elections in the several counties of this Commonwealth."

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same. That the qualified electors of the several counties of the Commonwealth, at all general, township, borough and special elections are hereby authorized and required to vote by tickets, printed or written, or partly printed or partly written, severally classified as follows: One ticket shall embrace the names of judges of courts voted for, and to be labeled outside "Judiciary;" one ticket shall embrace the names of all State officers to be voted for, and be labeled "State;" one ticket shall embrace the names of all the officers voted for, including the office of Senator and members of the Assembly if voted for, and be labeled "County;" one ticket shall embrace the names of all township officers voted for, and be labeled "Township;" one ticket shall embrace the names of all borough officers voted for, and be labeled "Borough;" and each class shall be deposited in separate ballot-boxes.

Given under my hand and seal, at my office in Bellefonte, this 3d day of October, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty-three, and in the One Hundred and Sixth year of the Independence of the United States.

T. J. DUNKLE,
Sheriff of Centre County.

—As the 5 o'clock train was standing at the station in this place Thursday a Pinkerton detective who accompanied the circus observed two pickpockets industriously plying their vocation on a man who was trying to enter the train. The detective quickly nabbed one man and handing him over to the tender mercies of Chief of Police Montgomery, went for the second man, who was trying to escape. He fired at him once, when the man turned and fired two shots at the detective. Then the detective returned the salute with two more shots. He could not fire with effect, however, because of the crowd and the man escaped. Meanwhile, the first pickpocket was conducted to the office of 'Squire Rankin where he had a hearing, 'Squire Smith acting in the judicial capacity. The man said his name was Fred Warfield and that his home was in Lexington, Ky. He had come from Lock Haven to Milesburg on the train and from the latter place here in a buggy. He said he was looking for his aunt, who lived somewhere in this neighborhood. We believe that a purse and a ring were the only articles found on the man. He was sent to jail. We are told that one of the shots struck the leg of a boy, inflicting a flesh wound. We have not learned his name.

Mr. Albert Owen's Land Purchase.

The Tyrone correspondence of the Altoona Tribune has the following:

Mr. Albert Owens, of Bellefonte, has purchased one hundred and twenty acres of land near Vail station, lying in the forks of the Valley railroad and the old plank road, and is offering inducements to buyers of lots such as has never before been offered in this locality. It is the purpose of Mr. Owens to lay out a town, and as an inducement to people to buy he will sell lots at the remarkably low price of $1 each. Mills and factories will be erected and a large store established. The founder of this new town which has not yet been christened has already broken ground for a fine brick mansion, work upon which will be pushed vigorously.

We have interviewed Mr. Owens in regard to the statement made in the above paragraph and find that the land purchased by him includes 140 acres. None of it is for sale at $1 per lot. The land included in his purchase is all very superior and is worth fully $100 per lot. When his residence is completed he will sink an artesian well and purposes to lay out a beautiful public park.

He Will Not Resign.

The reporter of the News had the pleasure, on Friday, of meeting the good-looking and talented President Judge of the 49th Judicial district, Hon. Jno. H. Orvis, and inquired of him if the telegram which recently appeared in the Philadelphia Times, announcing his proposed resignation, is correct or not. He immediately replied that it is entirely incorrect and without any foundation. Gen. Wm. H. Blair was standing near and remarked that "few die and none resign," to which Judge Orvis gave silent but emphatic acquiescence. It will now be in order for the Philadelphia Times to contradict its announcement.

—Saturday was the first day of the grand fall opening at the "Bee Hive" stores. From early morning until late at night the store was thronged with customers. Beautiful souvenirs were presented to each customer and about one thousand were disposed of, although doubtless many persons were missed. Twenty clerks and cash boys were engaged in the store on that day and then it was found impossible to attend to the wants of all as expeditiously as was desired. Among the extra decorations were the announcement of the fall opening in red letters over the entrance and flags displayed at appropriate intervals in the interior. We were also shown beautifully printed invitations which were sent to customers residing out of town. They are in perfect accord with the fine taste which has marked all the arrangements attending this enterprise.

—While hunting on Thursday evening, Henry Bell, son of William Bell, of Decatur mines, Clearfield county, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of his gun. The shot penetrated under his left eye.

One More Death.

It is our duty, to-day, to chronicle another death among the aged citizens of the county. Mr. Samuel Vonada, who resided with his son-in-law, a Mr. Tibbens, about three miles this side of Jacksonville, expired Saturday morning at 3 o'clock. He was 72 years of age. We have not learned the cause of his death. The funeral was held on Monday morning at 10 o'clock and the interment will be in the Jacksonville cemetery.

—The State Convention of the W. C. T. U. will probably meet in Johnstown next year.

—Have you seen, touched, tasted and handled those extra fine groceries at Harry Teats & Co.'s store? For general excellence they "take the cake" and should attract no end o customers.

—There was a freight wreck at Snow Shoe Intersection Friday evening. The construction train was called to the rescue.

—Doll & Mingle have just received 240 pairs women's solid grain button Shoes, which they are selling off at $1.25. The usual price is $1.75. Going like hot cakes. 39-2t

—John Kennedy, of Sandy Ridge, shot a buck a few days ago that weighed 220 pounds.

—All the conventions are ended and the circus has passed into history, but you can come to Bellefonte to purchase groceries of Harry Teats & Co.

—Judge Orvis held an argument court in Lock Haven on Saturday to close up some business remaining in that district.

—The largest line of Boots—lowest prices—at Doll & Mingle's. 39-2t

—The death occurred on Saturday, the 6th, of Mr. Aaron P. Richards whose home was near Port Matilda He was over sixty years of age.

—For the largest and best stock of Leather of all kinds go to Guggenheimer. 38-4t.

—Wash Rees was indulging in a little physical labor on Saturday, making sundry improvements about his little mansion on Reynolds' Avenue.

—Reynolds Bro.'s fine Shoes for ladies—no better in the market—Doll & Mingle. 39 2t

—We have received several communications of an anonymous character which we committed to the waste basket. Of course, the writer will not be surprised that they do not appear in print as he well knows our invariable rule in regard to anonymous communications.

—One thousand people can be supplied with groceries at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

—Mrs. Carlile, of Philadelphia, who has been the guest of Mrs. Hewitt, departed Monday morning.

—Where are the chestnuts which numerous frosts of late should have caused to fall from the trees?

V. S. C., "L."

—A spectacle of wondrous beauty was displayed in the west on Sunday evening. The sun had disappeared behind the hills when gradually a curtain of gold spread itself from horizon to zenith growing brighter and brighter as it approached the hills until it seemed to be a sea of liquid quivering fire. Then the hills were a golden brown, and as the reflection fell upon them from the glory of heaven's high archway the landscape also added its beauty to the scene. The silvery waters of creek and spring reflected the brilliant hues. The gold changed to crimson and then gradually faded away, leaving its impress however, as a lasting memory on the mind's eye of every beholder.

The German's Bi-centennial.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 8.—The bi-centennial of the landing of the first of the German colonists upon American shores was celebrated in a fitting manner to-day by the German residents of this city. The weather was beautiful, and everything conspired to make the celebration a grand success, and the greatest event in the local history of the German population of Pittsburg and Allegheny. The procession, which was at least fifteen miles long, consisted of twenty-five thousand persons and four thousand wagons and was indescribably picturesque. All trades were represented, including butchers, bakers, tanners, glass makers, iron and steel workers and carpenters, while every nation in the world had a representative in the columns, a grand moving show, which kept two hundred thousand spectators in good humor for four hours.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The celebration in this city of the bi-centennial of the founding of the First German colony in this country was inaugurated last evening, with a sacred concert at the National theatre, and this morning the business houses and dwellings on Pennsylvania avenue, Seventh street, and other thoroughfares are gaily decorated with flags and streamers, the stars and stripes, and the German tricolor being inter-woven in many graceful designs. Preparations for the grand procession, were visible long before noon, and the streets adjacent to Mt. Vernon Square, where the parade was formed, were filled with enthusiastic throngs.

Clearing Senator Mahone of Certain Charges.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—A. G. Sharpe, chief of postoffice inspectors, was recently sent to Norfolk, Va., by the postmaster general to investigate Degendorf's charge that Senator Mahone's agents had levied political assessments upon employes of the postoffice in that city. Mr. Sharpe reports as follows: "My investigation was confined entirely to employes of the postoffice and after making thorough inquiry I failed to discover a single man in the office who had been invited by Mr. Clark to contribute 5 per cent. of his salary or any other sum for campaign purpose. I have therefore to report that the statement of Mr. Dezendorf so far as it relates to employes in postoffice department at Norfolk, Va., is untrue."

Saved by a Faint.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 7.—As Miss Clair Sanders, a respectable young lady, was on her way to the public library last night, she was accosted by an unknown man near the institution with, "Now, damn you; I've got you." The villain then fired a revolver point blank at her head. Miss Sanders fainted just as the shot was fired, else the bullet must certainly have penetrated her skull. The would-be murderer made his escape. There is no motive for the attempted assassination, as the young lady is not known to have any enemies. A possibly correct theory is that she was mistaken for a Mrs. Lesare, of Toronto, who is stopping at the Sanders, and who has had serious difficulty with her husband. The affair created great excitement when it became known.

How they will Vote in Ohio To-day.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 8.—The election in Ohio to-morrow is for state officers and members of the legislature. Three amendments to the constitution will be voted for, one changing the judiciary system, one regulating the liquor traffic and one prohibiting the liquor traffic. The last named two have assumed a leading place in the issues of the campaign and in the reports of the result they will be included, showing what portion of the total vote for governor each has.

A Lively Dance.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct 8.—At Griffin's Inn, Columbia county, Saturday night, an altercation occurred between two colored men at a dance. Bill Williams struck George Harris and the latter retaliated by striking Williams on the head with a board, killing him instantly. The crowd fell upon Harris and beat him so badly that he could not be removed from the house to be conveyed to jail.

The Episcopal Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—The house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal convention to-day, in committee of the whole on the revision of the prayer book, the amendments to strike out from the title page the words "Protestant Episcopal" and insert "Holy Catholic" and to strike out all on the title page after the words "Rites and ceremonies of the church," were rejected.

Russian Students Assaulting the Jews.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 7.—It has been ascertained that students in the university here were the authors of recent fires at Dorpat and of anti-Jewish riots at Constantinograd and Tecaplinka. At the latter place the police were stoned and many wounded, and the Jewish priests were insulted and driven from the town.

Ohio all Right.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9.—The best information and estimate combined gives Hoadly a majority of 2,000 in Hamilton county, with the county and legislative ticket in doubt, with chances in favor of the republicans. In the state the contest between Hoadly and Foraker is so close that no fair estimate can be made to-night.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10.—In 622 wards and precincts heard from at 2 a. m. give a republican gain of 3,567 in a total vote of 182,618. The first amendment received 24,002 and is hopelessly in minority, the second amendment 82,693. Both parties are still claiming the election of governor. Nine wards in Cleveland show 864 republican gain. Cincinnati shows heavy republican gains.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND REPUBLICAN MAJORITY.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—The result of the election will not be known until afternoon. At this writing, 10.00 a. m., the indications are that the Republicans have carried the State by fifteen thousand majority.

LATER AND BETTER.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10—11 a. m., Later returns give assurance that the State will be Republican by 20,000 majority. Both Houses are strongly Republican. Foraker's election is certain.

Special to the NEWS.

The Second Amendment Carried

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10, 12 m.—The Second amendment, which was balloted on yesterday and for which the temperance people labored faithfully, has been carried by a decided majority.

Both Sides claim It.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 10.—Both parties claim the election of Governor. The Democrats are confident that Hoadly has been elected by about 5,000, while the Republicans are equally confident that Foraker's majority will reach 10,000.

From Iowa.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 9.—The election returns sent to the Associated Press to-night from here will be compared with the vote for secretary of state in 1882. The report will be late, as in this state no counting of votes is done until the polls are closed at 7 and 8 o'clock.

BURLINGTON, Ia., Oct. 9.—Returns come in slowly. There was a light vote on account of rain. The total vote in this city is 3,139. The democrats carry the county by about 800, being 100 less than last year. The democrats claimed the county by 1,000.

Spain not yet Satisfied.

MADRID, Oct. 8.—The Correspondencia reports that Spain is not satisfied with the action of the French Government in regard to King Alfonso's treatment in Paris and insists upon an official publication of the King's reply to President Grevy's apology. A deputation from the Army and Navy Club visited the King to-day and gave renewed assurances of loyalty and attachment of the respective branches. The King replied that, seeing himself surrounded by officers, he forgot for the moment the acts of the few who recently failed in their duty. He added: "When necessary I feel sure that the army will fulfill its duty and will be the safeguard of the nation. I am prepared to sacrifice my life for the integrity and liberty of the country and the honor of my army."

Running Away to Get Married.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 8.—James E. Bowman, of New York, and Ellissa Muller, of Atlanta, were arrested here yesterday on their way to New Jersey, on a telegram from the Chief of Police of Atlanta, charging the man with felony. The case came up to-day on a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Latham, when it appeared from Bowman's testimony that the couple were simply running away to get married. They were released, the Judge holding that they could not be held on the vague telegram of the Atlanta officer. The parties then hired a carriage and left for parts unknown. Bowman had been married, but displayed a decree of divorce with the right to marry again.

Preparing to Defend O'Donnel.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The committee recently appointed at a meeting of the Irish citizens to confer with the senators and representatives of the state of Illinois and urge them to consult with the department of state relative to the defense of O'Donnel, the slayer of Carey, held a consultation last night with Senator Logan and Representatives Finnerty, Davis, Adams and Sturnham on the subject. Senator Logan suggested that the committee name the attorneys whom it desired to be sent to defend O'Donnel. The committee named W. J. Hines and A. W. O'Brien.

A Baby Killed by his Little Brother.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 8.—Sunday afternoon in the little village of Rauchtown, Clinton county, a son of John Metzger, aged about four years, was instantly killed by a brother, aged eight years. The children had returned from Sunday school and going into a room began playing with a gun. Not supposing it was loaded, the elder boy pointed it at his little brother and pulled the trigger, when it was discharged. The ball entered the boy's head on the right side and came out on the side of the left breast.

PUZZLED PHYSICIANS.

Doctors Disagree over a Case that Perplexed the Whole Faculty—How a Woman's Life was Saved—A Remarkable Cure.

A talented reporter of that sprightly journal, the Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette, tells in the most highly interesting manner a terrible story of the sufferings of a gentle little lady named Mrs. Milo Ingram, now 43 Fayette st., Allegheny City, Pa., the daughter of Captain Hugh McKelvey, of same place. It was told to the reporter by Mrs. Ingram herself, and the news gatherer says it would have been too much to believe only the evidence was close at hand to substantiate every word of what she said.

"It was another instance," says the reporter, "of the culpable ignorance of a large class of practitioners of medicine who, while they pretend to be perfectly familiar with the minutest details of science, are often brought to bay by some unusually difficult case, which they are ashamed to acknowledge they do not understand; The little lady gave the names of some of the most reputable physicians in the two cities, to whom she had paid large sums of money for treatment, and all they had succeeded in doing was to make big fees, while she grew rapidly worse.

Her troubles began about six years ago, when she experienced a fall while attempting to cross a sewer drain that had just been dug. A large swelling came on her right side, which rapidly spread, became very much discolored, and caused the most intolerable pain. She sent for the leading physician of Allegheny, who summoned a consultation of prominent physicians and surgeons who united in pronouncing it a case of malignant cancer, and they told her it was incurable. She next consulted a well known cancer doctor of Kittanning, under whose treatment she remained six months. Her case not manifesting the slightest improvement, she experienced the most excruciating torture all the time. Her relatives took her to Rome, New York, where she remained for two years under the care of Dr. Kingsley. He pronounced it rose cancer, and although he failed to cure her, he very much relieved her sufferings. He also pronounced her case incurable.

The flesh of her breast was eaten away down to the ribs, the breast-bone was laid bare and the disease made its way upward, causing the breast to become detached from the wall of the chest, hanging loose from above. After awhile this healed partially, and the disease made its appearance in the limbs with even tenfold greater violence, not only eating away the flesh, but attacking the bones beneath. It affected both limbs, and then broke out on her head and face, affecting her eyes, making her almost blind, and causing her face to swell out of all its former likeness. Her mind was affected, and at last her death became only a question of time. A very reputable herb doctor pronounced her at death's door.

At this juncture her friends were told of the remarkable recoveries effected by PERUNA, and without any real hope of benefitting her, they determined to see if the remedy would be of any avail in her case. Four months after commencing the use of PERUNA she showed remarkable signs of improvement, and to-day she is a perfectly healthy woman. All her sores are healed.

Some fearful scars remain behind to tell the terrible story. Her sight is completely restored, and a more grateful patient a doctor never had. She says she never grows tired sounding PERUNA's praises.

Mrs. Ingram says they had paid over one thousand dollars to her previous doctors, without any permanent good, and her father would have gladly paid as much for PERUNA had a cure been guaranteed. About one hundred bottles of PERUNA, each containing half an ounce of iodide of potassium, was the whole cost of her cure. She took at first one tablespoonful four times daily, and gradually increased the dose until she took four tablespoonfuls every two hours. Notwithstanding these large doses, her appetite at once improved and continued good all the time until she was perfectly cured. She gained forty-five pounds while under treatment.

There are only two cases on record where it is known to have required half as many bottles to effect a cure. Generally speaking, ordinary chronic cases require only from six to thirty bottles, and thousands of cases of recent date have recovered perfectly on a single bottle."

An Immense Oil Well Struck.

TITUSVILLE, Oct. 8.—An immense well was struck in the Balltown oil pool late last night. It is owned by the Howe Oil Company. The production for the first hour was one hundred and sixty-five barrels. The well, however, has declined with remarkable rapidity and is now doing only twelve barrels an hour.

Death of an Aged and Venerable Man.

On Saturday evening, October 6, the death occurred of Benjamin A. Fike, the oldest male resident of this section and perhaps of the county, He lived on the Jacksonville road in Spring township, not far from town. We have been given two records of his age, one of them making it 94 years, 9 months and 15 days, but if the date of his birth given below is correct is should be 93 years, 9 months and 15 days.

The subject of this sketch, we are informed, was born in Burks county, Pa., on the 21st of December, 1789. We are also told that he was the last of the veterans of the war of 1812 in this county. After spending most of his boyhood days at the place of his birth, he removed with his parents to a place called Middleburg, then in Union county, but now in Snyder county.

At the call for troops in 1812 he was one of the first to respond, enlisting with Captain Noah Middleworth, of Middleburg, and marched on foot up through Penns valley by the Old Fort to Bellefonte, then by way of Philipsburg to Luthersburg. From there he went by what was known as the Erie Pike to the Port of Erie. Shortly after the company had arrived at the latter place it was put under the command of General Harrison, who ordered them aboard the Lawrence. "I remember" says our informant, "that he would often relate the story of the noble Perry leaving his ship in charge of Lieutenant Yarnell while he (Perry) went on board the Niagara."

"Grandpa Fike"-as we usually called him—was married to Christena Dealers on the 1st of October, 1820. Their family consisted of eight children, six of whom survive him, viz: Lewis, who lives at Black Bear, Clearfield county; Leavina, in Jefferson county, Colorado; Christina, near Altoona; Gabriel, at Rock Forge, Centre county; and Abram and Frank near Bellefonte.

Grandpa Fike was born spiritual four years ago and has clung ardently to the Methodist faith, dying in full triumph of a blessed immortality. He was perfectly conscious until the last and while surrounded by his children and neighbors he quietly sank into that sleep that knows no waking.

The funeral services were held on Monday, the 8th, at 11 o'clock, the remains being interred in the Howard street cemetery. Rev. Mr. Mattern officiated.

The M. E. Monthly Sociable.

On Tuesday evening of last week the basement of the M. E. church was thronged with an expectant audience eager to listen to the literary exercises which had been announced to be given at that time. Nor were the expectations misplaced as a rich mental treat was afforded them. The programme was of a patriotic nature and served to bring back to the remembrance of the audience the deeds of heroism of our country's early history. The declamations and music were notably excellent. After the stated programme was completed, Mr. George Boal was called on and responded in his usual apt and able style. His recitation awakened sentiments of mingled inspiration and sadness. The audience was dismissed with music.

—Rev. J. J. Jones, a member of the A. M. E. Conference, will remain in this place a week or more, during which time he will visit Bellefonte's representative citizens and present to them the needs of a very important department of the church work—the education of young men for missionary labors. He has certificates from prominent ministers and others in all the Protestant churches testifying to the importance of the work and he was especially authorized by Conference to devote his attention to it. He will solicit subscriptions towards defraying the expenses of the education of these young men. We hope he will meet with success. The occasion presents an opportunity for an exhibition of generosity and humanitarianism for which many of our citizens are well known.

National Guard Marksmen.

An order from the adjutant general's office says the season for qualification in marksmanship will close November 1. All reports must be forwarded to Colonel George Sanderson, Jr., general inspector of rifle practice, Scranton, Pa., by November 15. Where no brigade inspector of rifle practice has been detailed the regimental inspectors will forward reports to the general inspector of rifle reports, direct. Promptness in making the reports is enjoined, as no badges will be issued except under the reports as directed by this order.—Altoona Tribune.

Second Anniversary of the Boys' Branch.

The Boys' Branch of the Y. M. C. A. met at 7 o'clock Monday evening, the 8th, with about 50 boys in attendance. It being the occasion of the second anniversary of the Branch, the boys had looked forward to it with pleasurable anxiety. J. W. Gephart, Esq., conducted the devotional exercises and was followed by a report prepared and read by Gilbert Beaver. The report was excellent and showed that good work had been accomplished.

Morris Swartz then reported to the Branch what he had heard and seen while on his trip to the State Convention at York. He stated that he was the only one at the Convention who directly represented the boys' work in the State, which was certainly a high compliment to the Boys' Branch in Bellefonte.

Then followed some very fine music by the Adelphic Orchestra, which all present highly appreciated. Thanks, kind orchestra, come again.

The last and perhaps the most joyfully hailed of all were the refreshments, consisting of cake and ice cream. The boys seated themselves around the tables and Mr. Crow brought forth the dishes, his eyes and mouth vying with the saucers in size as he expressed the wish that he had a good appetite. Mr. Lieb wanted to make sure of the cake, and as he cut it he tested its excellence so frequently that if he hadn't been stopped the result might have been a cake famine. Al. and Robert Sommerville appeared to be seriously apprehensive that the ice cream would melt, but when it came, solid and delicious, their apprehension terminated in a scream of delight. The Devotional Committee were on hand as usual, and how they did eat! They illustrated their devotional work by devoting themselves to the consumption of the edibles until they could scarce look out of their eyes. After repeating the Lord's prayer this enjoyable meeting of the Branch ended.

A Word About a Public Library.

There is one public library in Bellefonte. It is made up of works of all kinds and all grades of merit contributed several years ago on the occasion of what was termed the "book reception." Including the books then donated and perhaps one hundred since added, the entire collection does not exceed six hundred volumes.

Among these are only a few standard works either of fiction, biography, history or travel. The desire to gain access to this library is increasing, but when access is gained the supply of reading material is so limited as to be disappointing and unsatisfactory. Yet it is all that Bellefonte (a town where people claim at least average intelligence) possesses in this line. Should it not have more? Would it not be advisable to improve this library by increasing the number of books? If any of our citizens have in their possession duplicate copies of good works here's the place to put them to benefit the largest number.

As this is a public library, open and free to all who will take advantage of its privileges, people of all or no faiths should take an interest in it. It is intended to be of universal benefit so far as Bellefonte is concerned. Then let each man, woman and child in Bellefonte aid it in any way that is possible, and the result will be a library of which the town may be proud. The educational standard of our people will be elevated. Strangers will be more deeply impressed with the fact that Bellefonte is a desirable place of residence. It will doubtless compensate for the investment in many ways of which we now do not even dream.

Escaped from Jail.

On Tuesday, the 9th, three prisoners escaped from the Bellefonte jail. They were David Hicks, the horse thief, who got away from Sheriff Dunkle once before; a Swede, whose name we do not know, and Al. Bower. The Swede is also a horse-thief. When the turnkey and the Sheriff's sister entered the door to give them their dinner they rushed forward, knocked the tray from the woman's hands and escaped by rushing through the hall, making their way east from town. The Sheriff started to Danville that morning, but was telegraphed of the escape immediately.

Railroad Progress.

We are informed that President Roberts has notified the committee appointed at the recent meeting in Centre Hall to urge forward the completion of the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad, through Penns Valley, that a committee of the Pensylvania railroad will meet them and go over the route in a few days. The committee of the L. and T. Railroad have accordingly delegated a sub-committee to meet them. This looks extremely favorable to the completion of the route from Spring Mills to Lemont.

Appointments of Conference.

Bishop Shorter astonished the members of the A. M. E. Conference on Monday afternoon of last week when he announced his appointments of ministers to new charges. They had not apprehended that there would be so many important changes as was the case. Although the changes are not agreeable to some, we are glad to know that they are all received by the ministers in a spirit of hearty acquiescence. Below will be found the names of the ministers and their appointments for the year:

D. Lewis, to Connelsville; R. Brown, Lewistown; R. H. Morris, Bridgewater; S. T. Jones, Oil City; J. J. Norris, Monongahela; J. W. Young, Altoona; R. Tanner, Youngstown; S. H. Lacy, Bradford; D. J. Johnson, Waynesburg; J. W. Riley, Bloomsburg; C. H. Brown, Waverly; A. W. Walden, Parkersburg; H. A. Grant, Salem; A. R. Palmer, Wilkesbarre; W. H. Pride, South Side, Pittsburgh; R. H. Jackson, Meadville; B. Wheeler, Brown's Chapel; I. N. Ross, Washington; J. M. Morris, Uniontown; W. H. Offer, East End; W. S. Lowery, Cannonsburg; G. G. Skinner, Brownsville; S. Burrell, Erie Station; C. Asbury, Wheeling; G. C. Sampson, Pittsburg; J. M. Palmer, Williamsport; W. H. Brown, Elizabeth; G. J. Clift, Bellefonte; T. H. Cyus, Allen Chapel; R. M. Henderson, Bradford.

Luther Memorial Services.

The four hundredth anniversary of Luther's birth is signalized by a great celebration in Europe and America. Friday, October 26, is the day fixed for a grand mass meeting of Lutherans in Bellefonte. All denominations are most cordially invited and earnestly urged to be present. From 20 to 25 Lutheran clergymen are expected. Rev. Jno. G. Morris, D. D., L.L.D., of Baltimore, President of the Lutheran General Synod of the U. S., America, will deliver an address on Friday afternoon and will speak in the evening and will preach in Bellefonte on Sunday, 28th. Prof. E. J. Wolf, D. D., one of the Professors in the Theological Seminary at Gettysburg, will deliver an address on Friday forenoon and will probably also speak in the evening and preach on Sunday, 28. Programmes and other information will be published next week.

—The election proclamation is once again flung to the breeze. It announces an election to occur on the 6th of November. Most of the polling places throughout Centre county are at school houses. This is to be regretted only so far as it interrupts the regular school routine, but perhaps the temporary familiarity which the average voter gains with this source of enlightenment may be sufficient recompense for the children's incidental loss of learning. But what astonishes us is that four or five of the polling places are in public houses. Aside from the fact that this is demoralizing in its tendencies it gives unfair advantage to Democrats with whom the chief commodity for sale at public houses (whiskey) is a more potential agent in piling up majorities than with their opponents. We believe that it will help Republicans if polling places are elsewhere than at public houses.

—The water was turned off the west end of town nearly all day on Monday of last week. It is a common occurrence for it to be turned off the building in which the REPUBLICAN is published. Indeed, so great a nuisance has this become that it would be almost as easy to get along without any water conveniences except Spring creek. His Satanic Majesty of this office is tired of running a half mile after a bucket of water, and if the water authorities don't intend to furnish a more regular flow of the liquid they may tear out the pipes and allow us to apply the water tax on the wages of the aforesaid employe.

After the Jail Birds.

The attorneys, constables, policemen, etc., who pursued the escaped prisoners on Tuesday, the 9th, continued the search all afternoon. About 4 o'clock Al. Bower was captured in the Howard street cemetery. The other two were traced to a suburban corn field by H. H. Harshbarger, Esq., but he concluded that if he entered the corn field it would imperil his chances of being elected district attorney.

We have since heard that David Hicks was arrested near Howard and brought back to jail.

—The Ohio members of the A. M. E. Conference failed to reach home in time to vote, for which negligence we are inclined to censure them. Bishop James A. Shorter, of Wilberforce, Ohio, traveled toward Lock Haven and preached in the African M. E. church in that city on Tuesday night, the 9th.

Don't Give Up.

The chances are all in your favor. Thousands of cases of consumption, catarrh, neuralgia, rheumatism, bronchitis, and other diseases—some of a most painful and desperate character—have been cured in the last thirteen years by Compound Oxygen. If you are a sufferer from any disease which your physician has failed to relieve, don't despair. Write to Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard Street, Philadelphia, giving them a clear statement of your case, and ask an opinion as to your chances of recovery under their new vitalizing treatment. It will cost you nothing, as they make no charge for consultation. Accompanying their reply you will receive such documentary evidence of their honorable character as physicians, and such direct and emphatic testimony in regard to what Compound Oxygen has done and is doing for suffering humanity, that you will be able to decide for yourself the question whether or not to put faith in them and the new remedy they are so widely dispensing.

If, however, you do not wish to consult them at present, drop a postal card and ask them to send you their Treatise on Compound Oxygen. From this you will gain all the information required to get an intelligent idea of the nature and action of this new remedy for chronic diseases, and so be able to judge for yourself whether or not it will be beneficial in your own case as it has been in thousands of others.

PRESENT POWER.

To-Morrow a Long Way Off When Help is Wanted To-Day.

Comfort is never in a hurry. Pain and distress are in not haste. It is to the "friend in need"—the friend who does something now—that the grateful pays the compliment of being a "Friend indeed." That they do not keep the sufferer in suspense is the salient excellence of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS. The plasters of other days—whether porous or otherwise—said—"Wait until to-morrow; we can promise nothing on the spur of the moment." But pain unrelieved, like hope deferred, sickeneth the heart sick. Benson's Plasters act on application. They permeate, soothe, warm and heal, containing, as they do, chemical and medicinal agents of the highest efficiency. Their motto is now, and the genuine have the word CAPCINE cut in the middle of each plaster. Price 25 cents.

—The telegram in the window of the Watchman office to the effect that the Republican plurality in Iowa will not exceed 5,000 is not correct. Sherman's plurality will exceed 12,000, and the good, old-time majority will be 30,000.

—A Christmas dinner under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. is already in contemplation by the members of the reception committee of that association. It is proposed to give the dinner to the young men of the town at 6 o'clock on that great national holiday.

—The third abutment to Spring creek bridge is being reared to the proper height quite rapidly. About a dozen workmen are constantly employed in the various parts of the work. We suppose that others would be engaged if they would offer themselves to Mr. Gallagher.

—The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Flem McCormick, of Nittany Valley, was the scene of a brilliant wedding on Thursday night, their daughter, Miss E. Aggie McCormick being married to Mr. T. P. Hayes, a prosperous young farmer of Dewart, Northumberland county.

—Mr. W. A. Tobias, ex-recorder, came to town on Wednesday and as the menagerie was here on Thursday he went out to look at the animals. Accidentally, he found his way into the circus and was too much fatigued to leave it until the performance was over, although he don't care for circus exhibitions at all; oh, no.

—The Luther Memorial services on Friday, the 26th of October, will be remarkably interesting. The members of that faith from the rural districts will visit town to remain during the entire day. The most notable clergymen and most eloquent orators in the church will be here to speak of Luther and his work. The services will be held in the court house and even the court room will be scarcely large enough to accommodate the immense audiences which will be attracted by the event. It will be a celebration worthy of the occasion.

State Convention of the W. C. T. U.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

About seventy-five delegates were present at the morning session which met at 10 o'clock, it being opened with devotional exercises. The principal address was that made by the President, Mrs. F. L. Swift of Allegheny, which was very interesting. Mrs. H. W. Smith also conducted a Bible reading.

The proceedings were interrupted by the receipt of a telegram which occasioned the ladies much joy. It was as follows:

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 10.

To Mrs. Ellen M. Watson, for W. C. T. U. of Pa., in convention at Bellefonte, Pa:

Second Amendment carried. Women of Ohio have immortalized themselves. Thank God for the Y. C. T U.

JOHN M. EMERY,
House of Representatives.

After this telegram was read aloud the Doxology was sung with feeling and effect.

The permanent officers of the Society are Mrs. F. L. Swift, President; Mrs. E. M. Watson, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. J. R. Jones, Rec. Secretary, and Mrs. W. H. Woods, Treasurer, all of whom are present except Mrs Jones, and she is expected.

On Wednesday morning the convention was called to order by Mrs. Swift, and Mrs. Mair and Miss Hannam chosen secretaries pro tem.

The address of welcome was given by Mrs. John Roberts and responded to by Mrs. Annie Wittenmeyer.

Miss White moved that the superintendents of departments be admitted honorary members of Executive Committee. Said she would again bring it before Convention as amendment to constitution. The annual address by Mrs. Swift advocated a wider and more thorough organization. Mrs. Chase presided during Mrs. Swift's address.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. Chase.

Minutes of morning session read and approved. Followed by report of corresponding secretary long, full and electric, with practical, telling comments. On motion, the report was accepted.

A telegram was received from Mrs. Woodbridge of Ohio: "We believe that the horse and rider are overthrown, Glory hallelujah!"

On motion of Mrs. Chase, the following dispatch was sent by the Bellefonte Convention to Mrs. Woodbridge, Pres. of Ohio W. C. T. U:

Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge, Cleveland, Ohio:

"Let us come before His presence with thanksgiving, for His right hand and His holy arm hath gotten Him the victory. FRANCES L. SWIFT.
W. C. T. U. State Convention, Bellefonte, Pa.

The report of Treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Woods of Huntingdon, showed ballance of $695.52 cents in treasury.

The following committees were appointed by the chair.

On Courtesies of Convention—Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Wilson of Bellefonte.

On Resolutions—Mrs. Dudley Blanchard, of Lock Haven; Mrs. Stewart, of Bradford; Mrs. F. D. Chase, of Great Bend.

On Finance—Miss White, of Mercer; Mrs. Holden, of Allegheny.

A report on Sunday school work was given by Mrs. F. D. Chase, of Great Bend, whose thorough systematic work of the past year will surely bring glorious and great results. Mrs. Swift thought that the reports should be discussed, and Mrs. Wittenmeyer was glad to notice in her travels through the State that the Sunday-schools are more generally interested in the subject of temperance than is often realized. Mrs. Butler spoke on the same subject.

Mrs. Watson desired Mrs. McCall, of York, to report on her Sunday-school, stating it to be the best in the State. Mrs. McCall reported that 1075 children had signed the pledge. The manner of teaching temperance in Sunday-schools is to mingle illustrations from scientific temperance teachings with the Bible lessons, and Mrs. Searle, of Mansfield, gave account of a school in her town that had increased and grown enthusiastic over such lessons.

The report on Young Woman's Work was given by Miss White, who recommended separate organizations of the younger members.

Mrs. H. W. Swift, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Hulings, of Oil City, participated in this discussion.

Mrs. Baldwin, of Trenton, N. J., gave an earnest appeal for true temperance work.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

The attendance was sufficient to fill every seat in the court room. Music was rendered by an excellent choir, "All hail the Power of Jesus' name" being the opening hymn. Devotional exercises consisted of the reading of Scripture and prayer.

Mrs. Swift introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. M. Hunt, of Boston, who began a most admirable argument, which we would gladly reproduce here if the limits of space would permit. She said that the jury were divided on the temperance question with six on the side of intemperance, four for temperance, one extending his anatomy through limitless space, trying to balance on both sides and one who is undecided. From this she illustrated the motives of those who occupied these positions, and showed which of the six who are arrayed with intemperance can be won over. From statistics gleaned by her she said that there are almost 1,000,000 children in our public schools. Pennsylvania women should labor for a legislative enactment similar to those prevailing in Michigan, Vermont and New Hampshire, requiring teachers to be examined in the effects of alcohol on the system and necessitating them to teach it to their pupils. We believe that vox populi est vox die. It is only so when the people are properly trained and educated. The closing illustration of the power of the people by their votes was fine. She compared them to the little drops of water collecting in the great lakes which flows through a mighty channel, forming the whirlpool and failing over the cataract.

A collection was taken after her remarks were ended, which was rendered a more pleasant exercise by the remarks of Mrs. Butler, of Johnstown, in reference to the necessity of what she called the "sinews of war."

THURSDAY MORNING.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Searle, of Mansfield. Minutes read and accepted.

By request of Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Butler was substituted for her on the Committee on Resolutions. Mrs. Goff, of Philadelphia, was added to complete the list.

Mrs. Rev. Satterfield, of Beaver, Mrs. Wharton, of Huntingdon, and Mrs. C. B. Little, of Sullivan, were introduced to the convention. Mrs. Little rode 40 miles in the stage to reach the railroad on the way to the convention.

On motion a vote of sympathy was forwarded to Mrs. Jones, of Philadelphia, the recording secretary executing the orders of the convention.

Mrs. H. W. Smith presented the subject of the State Temperance Union, which is composed of two members from every temperance organization. She desired two members of the W. C. T. U. of Pa. to be sent from east and west to represent this body in that organization.

Mrs. Watson was not favorable. She felt that the W. C. T. U. was the chief power in the State, and there is no need of entailing further work.

Mrs. Swift desired a motion for further discussion, which was made by Mrs. Smith.

Mrs. Patton asked: "Does the State Union send members to amendment associations?" Mrs. Watson replied: "It does." Mrs. W. H. Smith further discussed the subject by advocating union in the general temperance work. The subject was continued by Mrs. Wittenmyer, Miss Wright, of Lancaster, Miss White, Mrs. Firman, of Pittston, and others, the prevailing opinion being in favor of separate action by the W. C. T. U.

Miss White arose to answer Mrs. Patton's question as to the double petition presented to the Legislature.

Mrs. Smith withdrew her motion and the discussion closed.

Mrs. Rickerts gave an outline of plan of her W. C. T. U., proposing to have Miss White lecture upon scientific temperance. She has sent invitations to the board of directors to attend a dinner and concert and she thinks the plan will be successful.

Mrs. Elden reported success in Lewistown. Mrs. Mair reported systematic efforts of the ladies of Little Britain, Lancaster county. Mrs. Hunt made extended remarks and Mrs. H. W. Smith conducted Bible reading on the tender, abiding and comforting love of God.

Mr. John N. Emery, of Harrisburg, was introduced and enthusiastically received by the Convention.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Devotional exercises by Miss Calhoun. Reading of minutes omitted.

Mrs. Wittenmyer's report on legislative work received attention and was accepted.

Mr. Emery was again introduced and addressed the Convention. He explained the defeat of the amendment of last year's legislature and urged the women of Pennsylvania to use every effort to secure the election of true temperance men. Mr. Emery retired amid applause, and a vote of thanks.

Mr. Hudson uttered energetic and encouraging words, dwelling briefly on the work of the W. C. T. U. in Ohio and urging the Pennsylvania society to similar efforts. The work among colored people was not reported, owing to the absence of Mrs. French. Mrs. Harper, of Philadelphia, was present, and her touching appeal for the colored people moved every heart and incited each union to more active work in that department.

On motion each union was requested to pledge itself to more faithful attention to the colored people in their community and to appoint a committee for that purpose.

Miss White brought before the ladies her plan of finance to obtain funds for State work, viz: subscriptions of life membership. A discussion followed as to honorary membership. Many objected to both terms, but its adoption was finally moved and carried.

Miss White replied to the question: Is the money paid into the State treasury used for the benefit of local unions? She said that it is used only for the organization of county unions and state work. Dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Hall.

THURSDAY EVENING.

The Court House was well filled notwithstanding the fact that a circus was the opposing attraction. Mrs. Hunt was again the principal speaker and delivered a noble argument to prove that scientific temperance should be taught in the public schools. She believes that if the women try with all their power to have legislation passed to that effect that victory will speedily crown their efforts. Then in ten years the youth who is now eleven will cast his first vote, the sentiment of the voting population will be against the manufacture and traffic of intoxicating liquors and it will disappear and in a few years will be gone forever. Many interesting facts in regard to the effect of alcohol on the mind and nerves were given by Mrs. Hunt. Insanity and idiocy are transmitted by it to the third and fourth generations. While sons inherit passions from drinking fathers, daughters inherit physical weakness. The woman who strives to gain an education equal to that of a man, "breaks down;" the woman who essays to earn her livelihood, "breaks down;" the wife and mother with her many cares and burdens, "breaks down." In the two first mentioned instances the knowing ones say, "I told you so, she was out of her sphere, she cannot do the work of a man." But in the last instance they never utter that objection. When a man is in physical pain a drink of alcohol will often give him ease, not because it removes the cause of pain in any degree but its effect is to interrupt communication with the nerve centres, producing a sort of paralysis and thus doing him lasting harm. The lady was interrupted once by a drunken individual who was present, but he was ejected from the room and she afterwards alluded to him several times in illustrating her lecture, especially when she said that alcohol causes one to forget the proprieties of the occasion, and the drunken man who had been ejected doubtless was unable to distinguish between a gathering like the present one and a company of boon companions in a bar room.

FRIDAY.

Our report of Friday's proceedings of the W. C. T. U. convention is limited from the fact that we could not obtain possession of the minutes of the secretaries.

We have learned, however, that a vote of thanks was tendered the people of Bellefonte for their entertainment and that a full list of officers was elected for the ensuing year.

The evening meeting was perhaps the most largely attended of the series. An excellent choir was present which rendered very fine music, and Mrs Kress, one of the delegates from Lock Haven, sang three solos delightfully.

The principal speaker was Miss Narcissus E. White. Her address presented the position which modern temperance work is occupying, and in doing so she quoted from two newspapers which are not favorable to the cause. There are people who think that temperance sentiment is making no progress. A gentlemen had said to her recently that it is where it was forty years ago. She would say to that gentleman and to all people holding such views that in Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Arkansas and Maine prohibition or high license legislation has made wonderful progress; it is not necessary at this day to stop to reason with a man on the excellence of temperance.

She urged the boys to live temperate lives because no man on his death bed had ever been known to regret a temperate life, but many a death scene has been clouded by remembrance of a life of intemperance.

The remedy for intemperance is prohibition, not high license, for that is monopoly, and she had been prejudiced against monopoly since when a little girl at a candy-pulling party she would see the old folks eating up all the candy. Such laws might do for Russia, Italy or Germany, but not for free America, where people rule themselves. She also objected to it because of its false principles and because it was not easier to enforce than prohibition, as was illustrated in Iowa, Nebraska, and Omaha and recently in Chicago.

Prohibition is not a sumptuary law according to Webster's definition, as it does not relate to the expense of food or raiment. The last sumptuary law in England was passed many centuries ago and one has never been known in this country.

A gentleman once said to her that all the temperance folks are professing Christians and he doubted if it is a Christian principle to deprive so many people of the means of livelihood as would be done if prohibition became the law of the land. She said that prohibition would also destroy her own vocation, and the highest of Christian rules is, "Do unto others as you would be done by." When prohibition shall prevail the liquor seller might learn to be a tailor and she would learn to cook a good meal and do housework.

Several ladies circulated through the audience to obtain names as members of the W. C. T. U., and also to take a collection. After that was ended Miss White resumed her remarks and gave an experiment in extracting the alcohol from cider. Enough escaped to burn with quite a bright, blue flame, and was plainly visible to the audience.

Miss White's talk was effective and excellent.

Death of a Favorite Young Lady.

The Philipsburg Journal, of Friday last, publishes an item of news which will be received with regret by the numerous friends of the esteemed young lady to whom it refers. It will be remembered that she was a guest of the family of Mr. John T. Fowler, Esq., during the past summer, and formed many acquaintances. The paragraph in the Journal is as follows:

A telegram to Miss Laura Crissman, on last Sunday morning, announcing the death of Miss May Atkinson, of Camden, N. J., caused a pang in the hearts of Miss Atkinson's numerous friends in Philipsburg. The deceased was a charming and beautiful young lady, who for several years past has frequently visited Miss Mary Atherton and the Misses Crissman, at their homes here, and by her many lovely qualities, had won the admiration and esteem of all who were fortunate enough to enjoy her acquaintance. She was a favorite niece of John T. Fowler, Esq., of this county, and usually spent her summers at his home in Bald Eagle Valley. Her death will be a severe blow to Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, and cause a vacancy in their household that cannot be filled. Her death was indeed untimely and the sincerest sympathy is felt by her friends here for her stricken family. She died of typhoid fever, after about three weeks illness.

—The afternoon newspaper, says an exchange, is becoming more and more popular and the reason is apparent. In the morning men rush off to business, young people to school and wives and mothers are busy with household duties. The evening is is the time for reading, and the evening paper comes to the library table fresh and crisp with the latest as well as a resume of the morning's news. Everybody then had time to read. Most men and a few women skim over the morning paper, gathering in with their eyes the salients points of the news, but in the evening they read, and read thoroughly, for they have time to do it. That is why the advertisers use the columns of the afternoon papers so freely. It is the paper of the family, and they can lay their announcements through the medium of its pages, directly before the people on whose patronage they depend.

—On Monday, says the Altoona Tribune, the board of directors of the Pennsylvania railroad company started on their annual tour of inspection over the company's lines, to be gone two weeks. They came first to Altoona, where they spent the first night, and went thence to Pittsburg, passing over the Bolivar extension of the Western Pennsylvania railroad. The party will visit, in the order named, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis and St. Louis, being occupied at or between each of these points, and will spend Sunday in the last named city. They will then go to Chicago, Fort Wayne, Cleveland, Erie, Kane and Renovo, and return home on Saturday, the 20th inst. The Bolivar extension of the West Pennsylvania line was opened for traffic on October 1.

—The Nittany Valley railroad is again attracting the most attention from those who are interested in railroad building in Centre county. The advantages of the route through Nittany Valley over that through Bald Eagle Valley have rendered the adoption of the former route certain, and on Saturday a corps of engineers were locating the line near the point of connection with the Buffalo Run road.
